PASS MAN DIES—Mobile medic ambulance attendants work on Charles B. Buel, 30, of Route Two, Pass Christian. Buel, a construction worker on the Hancock Medical Center site, was found unconscious and possibly dead at about 10:45 a.m. Wednesday a few moments after two other workers left him to obtain a piece of equipment. He was taken to Hancock General Hospital where he was pronounced dead at 11:45 a.m. by Coroner Harold Stiglet. Bay St. Louis Police Department and Stiglet are still investigating the cause of death. An autopsy has been scheduled for today. (Staff photo by Dena Bisnette)

Superintendent vows no playing politics with 16th section lands

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
A parcel of 16th section land is now being surveyed, as Hancock County School officials seek information to end a conflict between two potential lessors.

Hancock County School District Superintendent Terrell Randolph told the board Monday that Oliver Lee, who lives adjacent to the parcel in question on the Caesar-Necaise Road, claims the boundaries of the land are wrong and that part of the land is located in Pearl River County.

Lee had formerly requested a residential lease on the parcel of land on which Pearl River resident Durwin Spence has requested a commercial lease. Randolph said following the survey, the land would be leased for the highest and best use.

"The 16th section land belongs to the children of Hancock County and I urge board members to look on the land as if were their own and get the most money possible for the school district," Randolph said.

The district has come too far in upgrading benefits from 16th section land for the district to do favors when leasing, he added.

The law states that the land be leased for the "highest and best" use and does not give priority to any person, he said.

"I intend to follow the letter of the law in handling 16th section land and will not play politics with the leases," Randolph said.

He also told the board he had got-

Midnight explosion, fire level Pines Club on Hwy. 49

A midnight fire which raged out of control for some 90 minutes Sunday destroyed the well-known Pines Club on Hwy. 49 in Saucier.

An explosion in a kitchen of the club sent a fireball down a hallway and resulted in a blaze which burned the structure to the ground, according to Harrison County Sheriff Larkin Smith.

The club was already totally involved in flames when firetrucks from five departments arrived, Smith said.

The fire was brought under control about 1:30 a.m.

Some 30 patrons and employees escaped from the building unharmed, the sheriff reported.

Captain Michael Harrison of the Orange Grove Fire Department said the cause of the fire is under investigation. "Arson is not suspected at this time," he added.

One Shaneyfelt injured, one killed in separate accidents

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Ronald A. Shaneyfelt of Lakeshore was killed in an automobile accident Friday near Lockport, La. and his brother Louis Shaneyfelt of Slidell, La. was injured in another accident the same day.

Ronald Shaneyfelt collided with a tractor-trailer rig after crossing the center line in a curve on Highway 308, according to Louisiana State Trooper Jeffrey Theriot.

Driving a La Baron stationwagon, Shaneyfelt was traveling south when the accident occurred.

After being extricated from the car by the Lockport Volunteer Rescue Unit, Shaneyfelt was pronounced dead at the scene by the Lafourche Parish Coroner's Office, Theriot said.

No charges have been filed in the incident, but the matter is still under investigation, he added.

Louis Shaneyfelt Jr. underwent surgery Wednesday at the North Shore Regional Medical Center in Slidell.

Hospital spokesman Gene Kidd said no other information on his condition was available.

What is the unit system?

Unit system referendum set June 3

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors expects to run into two major problems, a short deadline and a lack of information, in preparing for a June referendum on the county unit system.

The supervisors have only until the June 3 primary to decide how to reorganize the county's government if voters choose the county unit system over the beat system.

In addition, the board members have to use that time to find out exactly what the unit system is and how it operates.

The Mississippi Legislature approved a local and private bill last week that will allow a referendum on the matter. The date set for the referendum was not, however, the one the board wanted.

Board President A.A. Kellar said that the supervisors had intended that the referendum be included in the November general election, but language in the bill set it for the June 3 primary.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex said Tuesday that he believes there is no legal way the county can delay the referendum.

Kellar said the reason the board had hoped to have until November to prepare is that none of the supervisors fully understand the unit system.

The board has called a special meeting on the matter for 1 p.m. Monday.

Kellar has asked John Scafide Jr., attorney for the Hancock County Planning Commission, for the commission's input on the matter.

In addition, Kellar has asked that a representative from the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce attend the meeting because the chamber is presently sponsoring a study on the unit system.

All five supervisors have stated that they are against the system's general principles, but have agreed to go along with the decision voters express through the referendum.

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge said he feels that it is the responsibility of the board to educate the public about the unit system before the election.

"I don't know if we could educate the public about the details of a unit system because we haven't worked them out ourselves, but the voters should know what they're voting on," Courge said.

"A lot of people don't know what the unit system is."

"Well, I don't know what it is and I've been on this board a lot of years," Kellar commented.

Courge said he has been looking into the possible advantages and disadvantages of a unit system and feels it would not be beneficial for Hancock County.

Beat Three Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner, Beat Four Supervisor Sam Perniciaro and Beat Five Supervisor James Travirca also said they feel the system would not work here, but that the voters should be allowed to decide.

The board members said they are concerned because they have no general guidelines for setting up a unit system.

All five believe that switching to the unit system would make hiring an administrator necessary, since pooling funds and equipment and consolidating services would be difficult or impossible without one.

Statutes governing the hiring of an administrator are included in the Mississippi Code of 1972 but the county unit system is not mentioned in them.

According to Gex, the only statute referring to a unit system actually deals with the State Aid Road Program.

Under that law, each county's board of supervisors must vote annually on whether or not to adopt the unit system before being considered eligible for State Aid funds.

Three votes are required for implementation of a unit system, but five votes are required to return to the beat system.

Had the bill passed, adoption of the unit system or holding a referendum on the matter would have been required for counties wishing to qualify for Home Rule.

The Home Rule bill was defeated during the recent legislative session but the supervisors had already requested the bill allowing the referendum.

Home Rule would have allowed the counties any authority not specifically prohibited by state laws. Cities and towns in Mississippi currently fall under a Home Rule provision.

Ladner said the board also consented to the proposal for the referendum because the unit system has been getting "considerable publicity" and because all five supervisors have been receiving numerous inquiries about the system and how it works.

According to Deputy State Auditor Jerry Nash, there are no statutory provisions defining the system or offering any guidelines other than the required yearly vote.

Although there is a general consensus that the unit system involves consolidation of county resources, how that is done varies from county to county, Nash said.

The board of supervisors becomes a legislative body that sets policy and the administrator carries out day-to-day functions.

"The counties that have adopted the unit system have been experimenting with different ways to handle finances and different ways to make decisions," he said.

Bruce Crain, director of the Mississippi Economic Council, defines the unit system as meaning "policy-making by the board of supervisors with administrative functions directed by a county road manager employed by the board and responsible to the board."

Included in the system is countywide planning, budgeting, employment, purchasing, construction, maintenance and record keeping.

He said 11 counties have adopted or have voted to adopt the unit system, with Jackson County being one of the most recent. Harrison County is still in the discussion stage.

Crain said the council's definition is probably the only one available. He added that counties contacting his office for guidelines concerning a unit system are generally referred to a county or parish in or near Mississippi with such a system already in operation.

Eddie Washington, director of Mississippi Association of Supervisors, said the association is against a mandatory unit system because it may not work in some of Mississippi's counties, but even with the system being an option the absence of guidelines is a problem.

"Realistically speaking, we need to sit down sooner or later and provide a step one, step two, step three procedure for counties," Washington said.

"Even that is going to have to be flexible."

He added that he had not been contacted for assistance by any members of the Hancock County board as of Wednesday morning, but said the association would be willing to provide help if it is requested.

Board members planned to contact some counties with the unit system or administrators prior to Monday's meeting in an effort to determine whether a suitable version of the system can be developed for Hancock County.

Bay district delays kindergarten bids

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board has delayed opening bids on a kindergarten building at Waveland Elementary School.

The bids were originally scheduled to be opened Thursday but will instead be opened Monday at 2 p.m.

The request for the delay was made by Architect Jules LaGarde, who designed the kindergarten building. He told the board this week that he had been contacted by several contractors who asked for more time to prepare their bids.

Board Attorney Lucien Gex said it is legal to postpone the bids as long as LaGarde notifies prospective contractors with an addendum to the bid package.

In other business this week, the board:

—Approved catastrophic sick leave for three employees;

—Approved a sick leave policy for non-certified employees which provides them the same coverage as certified employees with the exception that sick leave days are not cumulative to 10 days per school year;

—Purchased a stage curtain for Bay Junior High School for $1,489 from Southern Stage of Jackson;

—Approved tentatively scheduling a faculty and staff meeting with recently appointed Superintendent Roger D. Oge' for April 21; and —Approved a recommendation by Superintendent J.D. McCullough that new air conditioning equipment be obtained to replace a broken unit at Waveland Elementary School.

The board meets again at 2 p.m. April 21.

Dumps to be covered

BY DENA BISNETTE

Work on three Hancock County dumpsites is scheduled to start next week.

Beat Four Supervisor Sam Pernicliaro, who is in charge of the county's landfill at Catahoula, said Tuesday that his crews plan to begin covering additional areas of the dump in order to comply with State Bureau of Pollution Control recommendations.

When Pernicliaro is finished, he will lend equipment to Beat Three, where Supervisor Roger Dale Ladner has two illegal dumps he must cover under a Bureau mandate or face the possibility of $25,000 per day fines.

The two dumps are located on 16th section land in Standard and Nacaise Crossing. Ladner has said he believes that it will cost about $15,000 to cover the dumps and expects to divert his road crew from regular duties to correct the problem.

Ladner met recently with bureau representatives to inspect the dumps and has placed dumpsters for collection of household garbage at both sites.

Any trash brought to the sites will have to be taken to Catahoula.

Ladner said he plans to cover the Nacaise Crossing dump first.

In other business Tuesday, the supervisors:

—Approved a proposal by Harvey Nixon and Associates for preparation of a block grant application for a water system in Steep Hollow and Catahoula;

—Set a public hearing on the grant application for May 5 at 10 a.m.;

—Reappointed Geraldine Lang to Gulf Coast Community Action Agency's board of directors;

—Approved hiring an addition land redemptions clerk for the chancery clerk's office.

The board has called a special meeting for 1 p.m. Monday to discuss the county unit system.

Will your preneed investment move with you in 10 years?

David Riemann, President

If you decide to move to another town or even another state, chances are your investment would be returned.

However, you may be surprised to find that the same funeral you paid for 10, 5 or even 2 years ago now costs much more. As a result, you may have to compromise some of your selections or pay a higher price for the arrangements you originally selected.

Whether the move is planned or unexpected, we feel that your investment should be protected. For this reason, we offer a guarantee to all families who preplan, which protects their investment no matter how inflation may affect funeral costs.

We invite you to stop by or call us. We will be happy to answer your questions and concerns or provide you with additional information at no charge or obligation.

Kindergarten consultant praises county school district officials

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
The Hancock County School District is well on its way to implementing the kindergarten program.

"The Hancock County School District is definitely ahead of many other districts in the state in the implementation of the kindergarten program," said Paula Triche, district kindergarten consultant and member of the state advisory board for Early Childhood Education.

Triche told the board that Early Childhood Coordinator Phillip Terrell is doing an outstanding job in laying the groundwork for the kindergarten program in the district.

She also praised Superintendent Terrell Randolph for being so receptive to changes.

Finally Triche commended the board on having the insight to employ someone to help implement the kindergarten program.

Many districts which have not taken this step are far from being prepared, she said.

"Early childhood education is not taught in a traditional education environment," Triche said.

But the single most important factor in preparing students for their formal education is the environment, she added.

The kindergarten program is not designed to take the place of the first grade but more like a "holding tank," Triche said.

"The kindergarten classroom should be a happy place where children learn under the confines of play," Triche added.

In the kindergarten classroom the total child should be developed, she said.

"This includes intellectual, social, physical, artistic and emotional development so the child will have all the necessary skills for formal education," Triche said.

"With these things in mind the kindergarten advisory board set standards for the program which calls for centers of learning in the classroom," she said.

In the learning centers students will have activities that actually relate to their everyday lives, Triche said.

"If the State of Mississippi implements the program as designed, ours will be one of the best in the nation," Triche said.

Terrell told the board currently there were 124 students registered for the kindergarten program but more than twice that number is expected to enroll.

In other business the board: —Approved a partial payment of $13,713 to Architect Fred Wagner for professional services for a six-classroom addition at Gulfview Elementary School.

—Approved a recommendation to employ Beth Walker as elementary teacher at Hancock North Central Elementary for the 1986-87 school year.

—Approved a recommendation to employ Lois Evans as janitorial substitute at Gulfview Elementary for the remainder of the 1985-86 year.

—Approved a request for Kim Segars, Penny Bourgeois, and Kinta Maloney to attend a workshop on Early Childhood Resources in Jackson on April 14.

—Approved a request for Superintendent to attend MASE Spring Institute on April 28-29 in Louisville.

—Approved a request for bids for the installation of 220 wiring to the Life Skills classroom at Hancock North Central School.

—Agreed to recess the meeting until 9 a.m. Saturday, April 19. The board plans to meet at Hancock North Central High School to begin an inspection of all school campuses and buildings and discuss renovations to buildings.

Gulf Regional recommends hospital-clinic zone near new hospital site

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

A representative of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission recommended a hospital-clinic zone for the area around the new hospital Tuesday at the Bay Planning and Zoning Commission meeting.

David Taylor presented to the commission a preliminary plan calling for the special zone to be restricted to medical clinics or offices.

The area proposed includes land 150 feet north and south of Benigno Lane from Drinkwater Road to the city limits and a triangular piece of land south of Scianne Lane.

The total acreage of the proposed hospital-clinic zone is 6.9 acres.

The special zoning would exclude commercial uses such as drug stores and high-intensity establishments including nursing homes.

According to the plan, the district will be like a residential zone in nature, with setback and yard requirements similar to a single-family residential (R-1) zone.

A vegetation barrier of at least 10 feet in width and/or a privacy fence could be required for areas in the zone that are adjacent to R-1 zones, Taylor said.

Taylor added that the planners at Gulf Regional feel the proposed area is the best suited for such a zone for a number of reasons.

First, all the land is undeveloped, thus there would be no displacement or direct encroachment on single family residences which lie just to the north, the plan states.

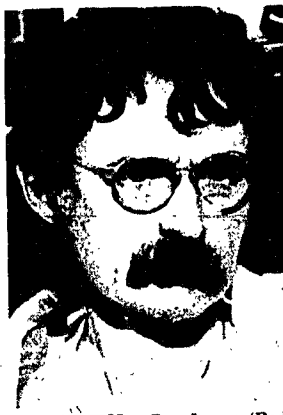

Secondly, the hospital-clinic zone would act as a transitional zone between the commercial zone to the south and R-1 to the north.

The planners also suggested the hospital-clinic zones be phased in over a period of time as needed and indicated other areas that are best suitable for the same zoning.

Taylor said the planners had recommended the zone after careful study of the area and its probable future needs.

"There will be a significant demand for medical facilities in conjunction with the new hospital due to the expected increase in medical professionals in the area," he said.

Taylor also said the medical staff of the existing Hancock Hospital had expressed a strong desire to move to the new hospital area voting unanimously to support re-zoning.

Quotables by CUEVAS

Congratulations are in order for Charles Gottschalk of Bay St. Louis who was elected to the board of directors of the Election Commission Association of Mississippi.

Gottschalk, a Hancock County election commissioner, has been very busy in recent years with the many special elections that were held for one reason or another.

We feel it is an honor to have a representative from Hancock County serving in such an important position.

The Navy-NSTL Special Olympics Field Day ran into some difficulties last weekend because of the unscheduled rains.

Athletes from Hancock, Harrison and Hancock counties were all ready for participation in the many events.

Wally Alston, coordinator for the Special Olympics, said this week that the Rain Day set for Saturday has been canceled.

The olympians are now preparing for the Keesler and Mississippi State Special Olympics Field Days and that is the reason for the cancellation.

Even with the rain last Saturday, the olympians and volunteers appeared to have enjoyed themselves.

The 4th Marine Aircraft Wing Band really kept things going while everyone was waiting for a break in the weather.

We do feel all involved in the Navy-NSTL Special Olympics Field Day Program should be commended for a job well done.

It is hoped the weather will cooperate next year.

Post offices across the nation were busy on Tuesday with an influx of Federal and State Income Tax returns.

Many people wait until the last day to file, while others do the chore early.

Whether a person has to pay or will be receiving a refund has a lot to do with when one files.

We have heard of a lot of folks who have requested extensions this year.

It is good income tax return time only comes once a year.

Report from the Senate

By Senator Gene Taylor
I am most pleased to report that the Legislature has passed and the Governor has signed into law a bill which will allow completion of the construction of the National Space Technology Transfer Laboratory in Hancock County.

The Mississippi Business Investment Act, which is now law, includes up to $3.2 million in funding specifically for the technology center which is already under construction.

The 50,000 square foot building is being constructed, furnished and equipped by the state after which NASA will operate and maintain it at no cost to the state.

We expect the project to result in 250 to 275 new jobs which NASA statistics say should pay around $30,000 each annually.

Future benefits should include enhancement of the state's economic development activities, the generation of high income jobs, and the development of spin-off industry throughout the state.

I believe that this project is a step toward creating the type of economic climate where our young people can find employment in high paying jobs without leaving the state.

The Act can also be a boon to Hancock County through other features. The general intent of the bill is to allow the Board of Economic Development to issue up to $100 million in bonds in order to use the proceeds to make grants or loans to local governments to make improvements needed to secure new industry or help existing industry expand.

Each $1 of state assistance must be matched by $2 of private money. Of benefit to the entire Gulf Coast is the provision that allows up to $20 million for the state-owned port of Gulfport. Of great importance is the provision that sets a minimum of 25 percent of the funds to be allocated to small communities.

This is an innovative program that should give Mississippi a competitive edge nationwide in attracting new and better paying jobs to the state. It certainly demonstrates the willingness of government to work hand in hand with private industry for the benefit of everyone.

GIVE THE TIME OF YOUR LIFE.

Be a volunteer.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON—How could a Legislature which did some of the most progressive things in state legislative history in the opening days of the 1986 session wind up in total chaos, leaving most state services in ruin?

Well it did, and only in the weeks ahead will the real impact of the damage the lawmakers, and Gov. Bill Allain, have done to state governmental agencies become fully understood by the people. It should be obvious to Mississippians that apart from a fiscal crisis, there is a crisis of leadership in Jackson.

The ultimate breakdown of leadership came in the concluding hours of the session when lawmakers found themselves incapable of dealing with the governor's veto of the State Highway Department's appropriation and simply walked off, leaving the second largest state service totally unfunded.

It is inconceivable to this writer after closely observing legislative proceedings in the Mississippi capital for 39 years, that either the Legislature or the governor would allow such a thing to happen.

The highway fiasco, which now makes it mandatory that the Legislature be called back sometime before July 1, has brought on all sorts of speculation as to Allain's motives in making the three-member elected State Highway Commission and the highway fund his favorite punching bag.

Legislators who tried to negotiate with Allain over the amount of cuts he would accept in the highway appropriation said he was implacable. Their feeling was that the only thing Allain would be satisfied with was to get total control of the highway program by creation of a Department of Transportation.

One version is that Allain's chief legislative aide, Charles Deaton, was angling to become director of the New Department of Transportation and that Deaton helped confuse the negotiations over the highway appropriation.

The greatest absurdity of the highway brou-ha-ha was when House Speaker Buddie Newman and his floor strategist, Rep. Jim Simpson of Long Beach, tried to suspend the constitution and give the House a second chance to override Allain's veto, after it had once failed.

Failure to appropriate any money for the Highway Department, however, should not obscure the appalling fact that the lawmakers and Allain together are also responsible for failing to see that vital state services were given even marginally adequate funding.

The worst part of the underfunding of state agencies is that the poor and the needy will be made to suffer. That picture is graphically illustrated by the cuts in the State Welfare Department, which will have to discharge at least 585 employees, meaning that persons applying for food stamps or welfare assistance will have to wait months to have their papers processed.

"There are going to be a lot of people who will go hungry," said John Fraiser, acting commissioner of Public Welfare. "For us, the cuts are disastrous."

The only state agency to escape without a bludgeoning at the hands of the Legislature was the Highway Patrol, which became the last-minute beneficiary of the proceeds from doubling the present $2.50 automobile inspection fee.

Ironically, anti-tax lawmakers and Governor Allain, despite his carved-in-stone opposition to any tax hike, approved the hike in the auto inspection fee even though it is a backdoor tax increase.

The sleight of hand by which the Legislature came up with an additional $40 million at the session's end to "balance" the $1.49 billion general fund budget will no doubt come back to haunt lawmakers, because most of it was in one-time windfall money.

In the long run, the Legislature's spending of the $14 million from the settlement of the long-running dispute with the federal government from oil lands in the Gulf of Mexico, can turn out to be a very unwise decision.

The prudent use of the oil windfall would have been for the lawmakers to save it for the educational trust fund which hopefully the people will vote to establish by constitutional amendment in November.

Hastily called election questioned

QUESTIONS:
—Is the June 3 vote on the form of county government fair?

—Have the people anywhere ever been given so short a time (a few weeks or rather a few days) to consider and decide so important an issue?

—How can the fine people of our small county get, in so short a time, the necessary information about beats or one-man systems of government?

—How can they be informed on such short notice how unfair, un-American, inefficient and wasteful this system is at best and that overall it is scarred with a record of fraud, corruption, and crime?

—Would it not have been fairer to have a statewide vote on this issue so that all the people in Mississippi including those in the 14 counties that already have adopted and are using the Unit system could have a part in deciding the issue?

—Even if this jumped-up election of June 3 favors the outmoded beat system favored by some of our supervisors - honorable men trying to prop up a disreputable system with all their public funds and clout - does anyone believe that this would for long settle the issue?

—Can a vote for the beat or one-man system of county government be anything more than a temporary step on the brakes of progress or do anything more than delay the day when Mississippi and Hancock County will no longer be near the bottom in our nation and state?

County unit system vote a welcomed opportunity for taxpayers

The Editor
The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis, MS 39520

Dear Sir:

The article "Voters to decide on unit system issue" written by Ms. Heathcock should be a welcomed one by the taxpayers of Hancock County.

State Representative Walter James Phillips should be commended for sponsoring the bill that was passed by the Mississippi State Legislature.

The taxpayers will not be voting on something that has not been proven an overwhelming success and savings of many hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in the counties where the unit system is in effect.

If proper management is undertaken in Hancock County if and

May use Hancock General again, but not by choice

April 14, 1986
Dear Editor:

Until a few weeks ago I didn't believe everything I heard about Hancock General Hospital, such as being a first aid station. I have heard so much talk and curious people wondering why a new hospital was needed when the old one is not run properly.

On March 23, which was a Sunday, I was alone shopping in Bay St. Louis when I had a bad asthma attack. I was able to drive myself to Hancock General and could hardly breathe when I walked into the emergency room. I did explain about my asthma and asked to see a doctor. I had to give information at the desk, finally I just felt so weak and breathless I walked in the treatment room and tried to get a doctor.

A male nurse helped me, but I did see the doctor approximately 30 minutes later. I asked for oxygen or breathing treatments to help me breathe or even an injection. I was told I could not have oxygen and the doctor said he didn't have a miracle shot to give me.

He did examine my chest and back, wrote three prescriptions and gave me a book on asthma. By this time I was so weak and breathless I couldn't get off the table and asked if I could lie down until someone could come and get me because I couldn't walk. I was told no, I would have to wait for someone in the waiting room and was helped out by the nurse to wait for someone.

I had to get a person in the waiting room to call my son. My son came for me and almost had to carry me to the car. He took me to Keesler where I was given oxygen, breathing treatments, blood test and Theo. Dur. liquid. I take asthma medication daily.

The doctor at Keesler did say I was having a very bad asthma attack and he couldn't understand why nothing was done for me at Hancock General. The doctor at Keesler did remark, "What kind of a hospital is that?"

I did receive a bill for $51 from Hancock General, I wonder what for. Nothing was done. I called the administrator and talked to him. He had the chief doctor call me and then I received a letter from him. He stated in his letter that everyone should have a doctor in the area and that I was put in the waiting room to be observed.

In response to his statements, I do have a doctor in the area, but how can you get your doctor on Sunday? I was placed in the waiting room but no one came back to observe me.

I have several people in my family with asthma. On several occasions I have had to rush them to the emergency room and then with my attack, I have a pretty good idea what treatments are given.

I may have to use Hancock General again, but it sure won't be my choice.

Sincerely,
Emelda Miles

Dear Sir,
Lest We Forget

On April 14, 1986, when our country courageously took a stand against terrorist activities sponsored by Moammar Khadofy, we were accused of killing his young adopted daughter.

Lest we forget, this evil man has been responsible for needlessly killing many sons and daughters.

Lest we forget, our President warned this terrorist leader to stop his inhuman activities of violence. He ignored this warning, so America kept her word.

Lest we forget, some 45 years ago America joined to rid Germany, France and Italy of another dictator, yet these countries today are critical of our country's action against a dictator equally as vicious.

Lest we forget, Khadofy has openly declared he is at war with the United States and Khadofy has proven he has no value of human life.

America is not a violent nation, America is a Christian democracy, once again doing its duty to safeguard Americans. This means you and me, lest we forget. I'm a very proud American, aren't you? Let's not forget.

Mississippi House of Representatives

Highlights of 1986 Legislative Session

By Rep. Walter Phillips

JACKSON — The state's financial quandary made the 1986 legislative session among the most difficult in modern times and largely overshadowed over issues as Mississippi lawmakers worked to avoid raising taxes yet fund essential programs and services to the extent possible.

Despite critical financial troubles, however, the Legislature passed several bills and resolutions expected to have a far-reaching impact on Mississippi and its people — measures dealing with economic growth, education, election laws, banking, health care, and law enforcement.

More than 2,800 bills and resolutions were introduced in the House of Representatives and Senate between the opening gavel January 7 and final adjournment in April.

Some of the highlights:

FINANCES

An austere general fund budget was adopted totaling approximately $1.49 billion for the fiscal year starting July 1, 1986. This represents an overall decrease from the 1985-86 fiscal year with a sharp reduction in funding for most state agencies and institutions, some by as much as 20 percent or more.

The cuts followed reports by budget analysts and economists that general fund revenues had been running substantially below estimates with little likelihood for any dramatic improvement in months ahead. The problems were compounded by a projected general fund loss of nearly $60 million in the coming year due to falling oil prices and the federal Gramm-Rudman Act.

There was a concerted effort in the House of Representatives to find additional money without a general tax increase, and lessen the impact of budget cuts on vital programs.

A modified $11 million package of money-saving options was enacted in the closing stages of the 14-week session with such items as early retirement incentives for state employees, a tax amnesty program to encourage delinquent taxpayers to catch up on back taxes, and higher motor vehicle inspection fees.

Shortly before the session ended, the Legislative Budget Committee voted to raise revenue estimates by $40 million including a $14 million windfall under a federal act involving offshore oil lease receipts, plus $10 million in sales taxes on food stamp purchases that it appeared earlier the state could not collect. While this enabled some adjustments in budgets for mental health, higher education and other programs, it was not as much as anybody would like to have seen.

A fight developed over highway funding. The annual $436 million allocation for the Highway Department was vetoed by the governor, who maintained $11 million should be shifted to other purposes. A motion to override the veto failed and last-ditch efforts to resolve the impasse were unsuccessful. The issue of highway funding remained unsettled as the session ended.

Earlier, the Legislature approved a bill to transfer $10 million in highway funds into the state Treasury as part of efforts to cope with the budget dilemma. Another bill provided that certain administrative funds of the Highway Department, as well as other "special fund" agencies, would be subject to budget cuts if necessary in case of a financial emergency in state government.

The Legislature also voted to delay issuance of new auto license plates for a year, using decals instead in order to save nearly $2 million in tag replacement costs.

EDUCATION

The Legislature acted quickly and decisively to see that funding of public schools and kindergarten did not get caught in the budget dilemma. On the opening day of the session, the House voted to allocate more than $599 million for general support of public schools in the 1986-87 fiscal year.

Traditionally, the biggest single appropriation handled by lawmakers, the bill included a $1,000 pay raise for school teachers authorized last year as part of the 1985 teacher pay package. In addition, $40 million was approved for public kindergartens as mandated by the 1982 Education Reform Act. Both bills cleared the Senate a day later and were signed into law before the first week had ended.

Another major education bill came later in the session — a measure to establish uniform school laws for the more than 150 school districts throughout Mississippi.

The bill does not alter the way school boards and superintendents are chosen in each district but does revise most laws dealing with school administration. It also contains a provision for a local referendum in 1988 in districts with elected superintendents on whether the job should be appointive.

Another key provision requires county as well as city officials to approve annual budget requests presented by their local school boards. Municipal officials already were required to approve school board budgets but county superintendents had the discretion to reject funding requests by their boards.

Under the bill, residents of a school district still can petition for an election if the proposed increase in the school budget is more than 7 percent over the previous year. An election is mandatory if the increase totals more than 10 percent.

The Legislature defeated a bill to relax the 60 percent majority required for approval in school bond elections. But the uniform school laws bill allows school bonds to be issued without an election, unless petitioned by the voters, for a period ending June 30, 1987, at which time an election again becomes mandatory.

If an election is held, a 60 percent majority still is needed for approval. Other sections in the 191-page bill deal with such matters as leasing school buildings, audits, transportation, and qualifications for school administrators.

A separate bill was approved creating a special fund in the Department of Education to assist local officials in removal of asbestos material from school buildings.

UNIVERSITIES

AND JUNIOR COLLEGES

Higher education also got a lot of attention in the 1986 session. The State College Board triggered a wave of protests and lobbying by university supporters by recommending that two universities be closed, Mississippi Valley State and Mississippi University for Women.

The Board also recommended closing the Ole Miss Dental School, the College of Veterinary Medicine at Mississippi State, and the off-campus degree-granting programs operated by Ole Miss, Mississippi State and Southern Mississippi. While bills were introduced to close or consolidate various institutions, there was strong sentiment that the entire matter needs a lot more study and the legislation eventually died in committee in both chambers.

A bill was approved to create a new 10-member governing board for Mississippi's junior colleges. The measure, which the governor allowed to become law without his signature, does away with the old Junior College Division in the state Department of Education. The new board will consist of two members from each Congressional district, all appointed by the governor for staggered terms.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

Several measures were approved to promote economic development and create new jobs for Mississippi citizens, including a bill authorizing a new program to help local officials in efforts to attract new and expanded industry such as the Boeing plant in Greenville and four-ship Navy base in Pascagoula.

The legislation, as finally enacted, allows the issuance of up to $100 million in state bonds with a limit of $50 million in the first year. The money will be used to provide loans and grants to cities and counties for projects qualifying for assistance.

Other bills gaining final approval included a measure to create an independent corporation known as the Mississippi Development Bank to help local governments in bond sales, and an act to establish a Corporate Headquarters Incentive Program and provide tax credits for qualified companies.

CONSTITUTIONAL

AMENDMENTS

A proposed constitutional amendment which supporters say is designed to give tax relief to Mississippi homeowners will be submitted to the people for approval in June. If ratified, the amendment would reduce the assessment ratio from 15 to 10 percent on single-family, owner-occupied residential property.

No changes would be made in assessment ratios for other classes of property. Agricultural, commercial and forestry property would remain at 15 percent, while public utilities and motor vehicles still would be assessed at 30 percent of true value. The proposal is a revised version of a constitutional amendment that narrowly failed to win legislative approval in 1985.

Other constitutional amendments session would let people decide in November if the Governor and State Treasurer are allowed to succeed themselves in office. The gubernatorial succession amendment, which cleared the House in the first week of the session, would limit the Governor to not more than two full terms or a maximum of 10 years if filling out a former governor's term.

In addition, the November ballot will include a constitutional amendment to extend the maximum term for leasing 16th Section School Lands from 25 years to 40 years.

Proponents say the change would reduce difficulties some developers have in obtaining long-term financing on the leased property, and bring a significant increase in 16th Section revenues to help finance public schools.

Another constitutional amendment was approved in an effort to establish workable conflict-of-interest standards for public officials. It specifies public officials shall not use their official position to obtain personal benefit other than benefits that may be incidental or accrue to the general public.

HEALTH

Among several bills involving public health passed by the Legislature was a proposed overhaul of health care services. The reorganization includes doing away with the Health Care Commission, Hospital Commission and Hospital Reimbursement Commission.

The duties of the Health Care Commission, including health planning and overseeing the Certificate of Need program for new or expanded health care facilities, were transferred to the state Health Department under the bill. A moratorium on new or expanded health care facilities, within specified limits, was extended for another year.

Other legislation allows the Health Department to levy new or expanded fees for performing inspections and other purposes, generating extra revenues to help prevent a cut-back in health services; creates a program to protect "vulnerable adults" from abuse, neglect or exploitation; provides for licensing dietitians; and encourages the state Board of Education to consider implementing a comprehensive health education program in public schools.

HANCOCK COUNTY PURCHASE CLERK AUDIT REPORT SEPTEMBER 30, 1985

April 5, 1986

Board of Supervisors
Hancock County
Bay St. Louis, Mississippi

We have made a study and evaluation of the central purchasing system of Hancock County for the fiscal year ended September 30, 1985. Our study and evaluation was made in accordance with guidelines and procedures set forth by the Mississippi State Audit Department. Our study and evaluation included a test of compliance with such procedures during the fiscal year ended September 30, 1985. We tested 39 of the transactions which constituted 15 percent of the total transactions. Our study and evaluation did not constitute an audit of any financial statements prepared by Hancock County.

Section 31-7-101 through 31-7-127, Miss. Code Ann. (1972), provides for a central purchasing system by the boards of supervisors of each county. The objective of the central purchasing system is to provide a reasonable, but not absolute, assurance that purchases are executed in accordance with applicable state law.

Because of inherent limitations in any central purchasing system, errors or irregularities may occur and not be detected. Also, projection of any evaluation of the system to future periods is subject to the risk that procedures may become inadequate because of changes in conditions, or that the degree of compliance with the the procedures may deteriorate.

We understand that procedures in conformity with the criteria referred to in the first paragraph of this report are considered by the Board of Supervisors of Hancock County to be adequate for its purpose in accordance with Sections 31-7-101 through 31-7-127, Miss. Code Ann. (1972), and that procedures not in conformity with those criteria indicate some inadequacy for such purposes. Based on this understanding and on our study and evaluation, in our opinion Hancock County's central purchasing system was in compliance with the aforementioned sections, except for the conditions described below.

1. From a sample size of 39 items it was noted that there were 10 purchase requisitions signed by unauthorized personnel.

Recommendation: All purchases requisitions should be signed by authorized personnel only. The purchase requisition is to be completed by the COUNTY DEPARTMENT OR OFFICE requesting the supplies, materials, or equipment. This is to be done before any order is placed.

2. It appears that the receiving reports are not signed by the person in the field taking actual receipt of the goods.

Recommendation: All receiving reports are to be completed by the person in the field taking actual receipt of the purchased goods.

This report is intended for use in evaluating the central purchasing system of Hancock County and should not be relied upon for any other purpose.

Legislative Update

From Mississippi Reporting Service

Week of April 7

By Rosa Lee H. Jones

The Legislature adjourned Friday without reaching an agreement on the State Highway Department budget.

Unless Gov. Bill Allain calls a special session, the agency will run out of money July 1. In its final hours, the legislature also approved a $1.49 billion general fund that included an $11 million cost-cutting package.

The highway roadblock was created when the House sustained Allain's veto of a bill he felt didn't slice enough from the department's budget. Allain blames the Senate for the impasse.

Allain wanted $11 million cut from highway funds and put into the state's general fund. The fiery chief executive has complained frequently that the Highway Department should be subject to the same budget cuts as other state agencies.

The department is a special fund agency and is not included in cuts to the state's general fund.

If a special legislative session is called, Allain says it should consider totally revamping the Highway Department.

The $11 million budget-cutting plan is all that remains of an earlier $107 million cost-cutting plan that has been progressively whittled down as more and more state agencies made successful efforts to save their budgets from the knife.

The budget cut diverts funds into mental health, law enforcement, welfare and health agencies. A one-time tax amnesty, allowing delinquent taxpayers to repay the state without penalty, is also included.

The House package, when combined with a one-time $28 million federal tax windfall, means state agencies face only around a 13 percent cut, instead of the 21 percent trim legislative leaders had earlier predicted. More than 600 state workers are still expected to be laid off, however.

A $27 million prison construction compromise designed to ease inmate overcrowding was approved by both the House and Senate.

Taxes amounting to $16 million from Grand Gulf nuclear station and $32 million in excess funds collected from Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway bridge construction will be distributed among participating counties under a bill passed by both houses.

A greatly-weakened ethics resolution was agreed to by both the House and Senate and the proposed constitutional amendment moves onto the ballot for voters' consideration.

The legislature approved slightly different versions of a bill to continue limiting the interest banks can charge to five percentage points above the federal discount rate. The current federal rate is seven percent.

Allain said he will search the state legal code for a way to use his emergency and executive powers to keep the Highway Department operating after June 30.

Senate voting record thru

11 This bill funded the institutions of higher learning. It included a special provision for $4.5 million for programs located at the University of Mississippi, Mississippi State University and the University of Southern Mississippi. It passed. Yea - 43, Nay - 8, Absent or not voting - 1, M. Smith (47) - Yea, Taylor - Yea.

This vote approved a compromise on prison construction. This measure will add to the Parchman and Rankin County facilities and build an additional 500-bed medium-security unit south of I-20. It passed. Yea - 37, Nay - 12, Absent or not voting - 3, M. Smith (47) - Yea, Taylor - Yea.

The Senate approved a compromise bill for the distribution of taxes from the Grand Gulf nuclear facility. It passed with only Disharoon voting Nay.

This vote proposes a constitutional amendment rewriting the conflict-of-interest section of the state constitution. The section weakens the prohibitions on lawmakers and other public officials against conflict-of-interest. Yea - 34, Nay - 17, Absent or not voting - 1, M. Smith (47) - Yea, Taylor - Nay.

On Friday, April 11, the Senate voted to adjourn the 1986 Regular Session of the Legislature. This adjournment was five days later than the regularly scheduled time for adjournment. The lawmakers went home before passing an appropriations package for the Highway Department leaving them without funding past June of 1986. Yea - 35, Nay - 13, Absent or not voting - 3, M. Smith (47) - Nay, Taylor (Paired) - Yea.

This vote proposes a constitutional amendment rewriting the conflict-of-interest section of the state constitution. The section weakens the prohibitions on lawmakers and other public officials against conflict-of-interest. Yea - 100, Nay - 20, Absent or not voting - 1, Present - 1, Phillips - Yea.

To override the Governor's veto of the Highway Department's appropriation would have taken 80 votes. It failed. Yea - 70, Nay - 50, Absent or not voting - 1, Present - 1, Phillips - Nay.

This vote was the final passage of HB1369 which was the massive cost savings bill. Yea - 90, Nay - 30, Paired - 2, Phillips - Yea.

On Friday, April 11, following the Senate's lead, the House voted to adjourn the 1986 Regular Session of the Legislature. This was five days later than the regularly scheduled time for adjournment. The lawmakers went home before passing an appropriations package for the Highway Department leaving no highway funding past June of 1986. The vote recorded is their second vote. It took two votes before enough could agree on passage. Yea - 67, Nay - 51, Absent or not voting - 4, Phillips - Yea.

Highlights.....

tion laws was approved by legislators, based largely on recommendations by an interim study committee.

The bill provides for polls to stay open an extra hour at night so more people can vote; requires all counties to have automated voting devices by 1989; updates finance reporting laws for candidates and provides for filing of financial statements by political action committees; revises absentee voting laws; makes it illegal to offer prizes to people to vote or not to vote; and brings the old hodgepodge of election laws together in a logical systematic package.

Mississippi will be authorized to take part in a proposed southern regional presidential primary in 1988 under another bill winning legislative approval.

PRISONS

Lawmakers voted to ease prison crowding by authorizing construction of new prison facilities to house up to 1,000 inmates, with a 500-man unit at Parchman and another facility at a site in South Mississippi to be selected by the Bureau of Buildings, Grounds and Real Property Management.

Other legislation would re-enact a 1985 law giving emergency powers to the governor to deal with prison crowding by advancing parole eligibility dates; and prohibit possession of money orders by state prison inmates, part of the effort to halt the money-order scam uncovered last year at the Parchman penitentiary.

CORONERS, CONSTABLES

County coroners will be required to have at least a high school education or equivalent and complete a special training course in death investigation under a bill approved by the 1986 Legislature.

The changes apply to coroners elected in 1987 and thereafter. The bill also makes several revisions in laws dealing with the state Medical Examiner's office in a move to improve handling of death investigations.

Another bill requires county constables, starting in 1988, to successfully complete a training course in law enforcement and wear a uniform while on duty.

In addition, the bill reduces the number of constables in each county to coincide with the number of justice court judges, and specifies that motor vehicles used by constables must be clearly identified and equipped with blue flashing lights.

GRAND GULF, TVA

Separate bills were approved involving the redistribution of millions of dollars in revenue from the Grand Gulf nuclear plant in Claiborne County, and redistribution of TVA payments in lieu of taxes in portions of North Mississippi served by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Under the Grand Gulf bill, the nuclear plant would be assessed not less than $16 million a year with Claiborne County getting 50 percent initially, dropping to 30 percent by 1991. The state would get 10 percent and the remainder would be divided among more than 40 counties served by Mississippi Power & Light Company, which operates the plant.

The TVA bill sets a new formula for distributing annual in-lieu payments to Tishomingo County, where the aborted Yellow Creek plant is located, and other TVA counties. It also provides for distribution of about $32 million remaining from the old Tennessee-Tombigbee Bridge fund, with $12.5 million going to Tishomingo County, $3.5 million to the state, $3.5 million to the Yellow Creek Port, and $12.5 million split among 11 other counties in the Tenn-Tom area.

BANKING

A major banking bill approved in the 1986 session would do away with a controversial 100-mile limit and permit banks to buy or merge with other banks statewide beginning July 1, 1986. In addition, the measure allows banks to open branches beyond the 100-mile limit with these provisions phased in over a three-year period starting in mid-1987 and ending in July 1989.

Other provisions include certain restrictions on opening new branches in an effort to protect small-town banks, and authorize regional interstate banking starting in 1988.

Another bill approved in the closing days of the session extends a state law establishing a floating ceiling on interest rates charged by banks for most loans, tied to the federal discount rate. The bill also permits negotiated interest rates on larger loans starting in July with loans of at least $125,000 and dropping by 1988 to $25,000.

INSURANCE, BLUE LAWS

A variety of other bills won legislative approval in 1986 including measures to regulate credit life insurance and reduce rates on credit life coverage, and to repeal the state's old Blue Laws, allowing cities and counties to deal as they choose with Sunday sales.

Also approved were bills to extend the doctrine of sovereign immunity another year to help protect government from costly lawsuits; establish a Catfish Processors Fair Practices Act to protect Mississippi catfish producers; create a Division of Family and Children's Services in the Public Welfare Department; enlarge the state's housing loan program to include financing of rental projects and energy conservation loans; outlaw the sale of children for adoption, a practice previously not prohibited by state law; increase annual payments to $2 million to school districts in the Chickasaw Cession area; permit closed-circuit television or videotaped testimony in some child abuse cases; provide for classifying municipal and domestic wastewater facilities; make it unlawful to have redfish on boats carrying a purse seine; protect lounge operators from damage suits when adult customers get drunk and cause an accident; increase the maximum penalty for arson of insured property from five to 10 years in prison; and revise state purchasing laws.

The Legislature gave final approval to bills that would establish grandparent visitation rights in divorce or child custody cases; extend the state's anti-racketeering law; require parental consent in abortion cases involving minors; give the Highway Patrol additional powers to assist other law enforcement officers under certain conditions; require that the odometer (mileage) reading be contained in applications for a motor vehicle title; fund a state nursing home for veterans.

Provide for additional regulation of the possession of explosives; amend the state's unemployment compensation act to raise maximum weekly benefits from $115 to $130; authorize issuance of revenue bonds to purchase two buildings in the Jackson area to house state agencies currently paying to rent space in the buildings; and increase the penalty for passing a stopped school bus.

Vice President George Bush was among numerous dignitaries who visited the House during the session. Two teachers who represented Mississippi in the Teacher in Space

THIS AD HAS ALREADY SAVED YOU MONEY.

If you paid for this newspaper, we have something in common.
We paid for it, too.

In fact, every advertiser you see in these pages paid handsomely for the privilege of being here.
And what we paid went toward the cost of producing the newspaper. Which made it a lot cheaper for you to buy.

How much cheaper? Well, if you took all the advertising away, the average newspaper would cost you about five times as much.

And offer you about half as much.

After all, advertising informs you about new products. It helps you make smarter decisions about what to buy. Often it enlightens you. Sometimes it entertains you.

And yes, occasionally it annoys you. But if it does, you can take advantage of one of advertising's nicest features.

You can simply ignore it.

It might hurt our feelings. But we'll still chip in for your newspaper.

'God's Favorite' opens Bay theater season

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre opens its 40th season tonight with Neil Simon's comedy, "God's Favorite."

The production continues Friday and Saturday at the Boardman Avenue Playhouse. Doors open at 7:45 with an 8:15 curtain time for each performance.

The play is a funny, modern adaptation of the Biblical story of Job and features Al Becker and Anthony Kalberg.

Becker plays Joseph Benjamin, a rich man who is approached by a messenger from God. The messenger tells Benjamin that he can expect a trial by suffering because he is the pawn in a bet between God and Satan.

Kalberg plays the neurotic messenger, Sidney Lipton.

The chemistry between Kalberg and Becker enhances a funny script and allows them to steal the show.

Kalberg provides Lipton with a range of exaggerated, erratic gestures and pratfalls that appear to make Becker and the rest of the cast wear out watching him.

In addition, his rapid-fire delivery and working-class New York accent give Lipton an indignant attitude that constantly reminds the audience that God's messenger is no angel.

Becker is in complete contrast to Kalberg as he portrays the patient, suffering Benjamin going from riches back to poverty and coping with a bizarre ailment that makes it impossible for anyone to touch him.

Kalberg raises his eyes toward the ceiling and speaks to God as though he were speaking to someone he could see.

His performance is consistent throughout, even during his first meeting with Sidney, who is apparently crazy and has chosen a burglar's method for entering the Benjamin home.

Supporting cast members include Sally Rodrigue as Benjamin's nervous wife Rose, Kissy Byrd and Tim Proulx as the Benjamin twins Sarah and Ben, and Tom Bagwill as Benjamin's drunken son David.

Also included are Carol Young and Danny Young as two domestic servants who stick with the family through all Benjamin's troubles.

Rodrigue and Bagwill attack their parts in the same manner, playing their characters with a subdued technique that provides some relief from Kalberg's perpetual motion.

Rodrigue begins the play acting like a nervous woman on tranquilizers and gets progressively jumpy as her husband's burden increases.

Bagwill delivers acid lines with a pleasant look on his face that provides the audience with a reason to believe in Benjamin's continued patience with his drunken son.

Byrd and Proulx serve as foils for Bagwill by being Benjamin's pleasant children. Proulx gives an earnest performance as Benjamin's younger but more serious son while Byrd portrays a talkative, somewhat silly Sarah.

Carol Young as the maid has her best scene when she gets on her knees and prays that God will end her employers suffering, are complete with handraising hallelujahs.

Danny Young, as the butler, is reminiscent of the Rochester character who served as butler for Jack Benny.

The entire cast keeps up a fast pace throughout the entire performance that is directed by Becky Rotundo.

Stage manager is Pat Schott. Carol Young, Danny Young, Tim Bourgeois, Ken Rayborn, Sam Cuevas and Rotundo provide the set.

Karen Moore and Rita Fanning are prop managers, Bourgeois provides lights and Layne Bourgeois provides make-up.

Reservations can be made by calling 467-6432 between 9 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The audience is also invited to view an art exhibit in the lobby before curtain time.

GOD'S FAVORITE—In a scene from the Bay St. Louis Little Theater's current production, three actors rehearse the aftermath of a fire. From left, Carol Young as Mady the maid and Danny Young as Morris the butler pray that God will intervene to end the suffering of their employer, Joseph Benjamin, played by Al Becker, right. "God's Favorite" opens tonight and continues Friday and Saturday.

ETV Brief

FURNITURE MAKERS

Furniture manufacturing, a rapidly growing industry in Mississippi, will be featured on "Farmweek" Monday, April 14, at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

The growing number of small furniture manufacturing plants, especially in northern Mississippi, is helping the forest industry in the state. "Farmweek" reporters will study this impact on forestry as they visit a sawmill and a furniture manufacturer in Mississippi.

Also on this program will be the first part of a three-part series on home gardening. This week's segment deals with proper methods and materials for mulching.

As on every second Monday of each month, "Farmweek" will report the latest timber prices. "Farmweek," co-produced by Mississippi ETV and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service, provides up-to-the-hour farm prices, market analyses, local and national agricultural news and a calendar of upcoming events in the state.

Dynamite takes third successive championship

Gifts-n-Gold Dynamite will be representing Bay Area Youth Soccer in Girls Under-12 Division State Championship play in Jackson the weekend of May 3 and 4.

Dynamite faced the Ocean Springs Royals Saturday and won 4-0. Scoring for Dynamite were Day Hays, Jennifer Carter, and Kim Weinstein.

Carter scored on a penalty kick, and Weinstein scored two, one on a header with an assist from Carter. Dynamite bested the South

Mississippi Soccer Club Goalbusters 2-0 in their second match on Sunday.

Scorers were Erin O'Brien and Jennifer Carter who scored on her second penalty kick for the tournament.

In tournament finals Tuesday night at Milner Stadium in Gulfport, Dynamite clinched the district championship after tying SMSC Gators, 0-0.

Coach Kathy Edwards said

Dynamite's defense was 'awesome' in keeping all three district tournament opponents scoreless.

Goalie Susanna Cameron was able to take every shot toward the goal in front of the goalie box due to the excellent play of the Dynamite defense.

Playing defense during the tournament were Renee LeBourgeois, Whitney White, Kristy Heitzmann, Amy Lee and Day Hays.

SSC-OLA Tennis Team improves record to 9-1 with wins over Bay High and Mercy Cross

The SSC-OLA Tennis Team soundly defeated Mercy Cross 5-0 in Varsity action last Tuesday and the "B" Team also won by an identical 5-0 score.

This past Tuesday, SSC-OLA hosted cross-town rival Bay High. In Varsity action, SSC-OLA defeated the Bay High Tigers 4-1. There were no "B" Team games played.

In the Mercy Cross contest, Sam Morse defeated Peter Barhanovich in boys singles by scores of 6-4 and 6-1. In girls "A" singles, Betsy Bryant beat Becky Krysti 6-2, 6-2.

Tom Cook and Steve Bouis bested Paul Bourgeois and Chris Conry 6-1, 6-0 to easily win boys "A" doubles.

In girls "A" doubles, Monique LeBourgeois and Nicole Montagmet defeated Mary LaRosa and Karen Conry 6-1, 6-4. And in "A" team mixed doubles, David Bourgeois and Liz Haas beat Mark Russo and Suzy Dubois 6-2, 6-0 to complete the sweep.

In "B" Team action, the five winners from SSC-OLA were Marco Lau in boys singles, Kelly Kolodziej in girls singles, Terry LeBourgeois and Scott Hensgens in boys doubles, Jennifer Compretta and Amanda Peterson in girls doubles, and Scott Comaux and Julie Guintard won 6-0 in "B" team mixed doubles.

In the Bay High matches, Tom Cook from SSC defeated Matthew Cameron 6-2, 6-0 in "A" boys singles. In "A" girls singles Helene Loiacano beat Betsy Bryant 6-3, 6-2.

Steve Bouis and Sam Morse bested Mark Gonzales and Kevin Ladner 6-0, 7-5 in "A" boys doubles, while Nicole Montagmet and Kelly Koldziej defeated Deserez Ladner and Jennifer Proulx 6-1, 6-1 in "A" girls doubles.

In the mixed doubles match, Marco Lau and Monique LeBourgeois defeated Jean Julian and Kendra Morris 6-3, 6-1 to secure an overall 4-1 SSC-OLA triumph.

The SSC-OLA tennis team, coached by Myron Labat and Barbara Powell, now have a 9-1 won-loss record.

This Thursday, the SSC-OLA tennis team entertains rival St. John here at the SSC courts, with the first matches beginning at 3:30. St. John's tennis team has received wide recognition as being one of the most talented tennis teams on the Coast.

In the only meeting of the two teams last March 26, SSC-OLA defeated St. John's "A" team by a 3-2 score.

Spring Fishing Tips

Spring is a time of peak fishin' fever, especially up North where anglers have had to hibernate from November through April. To take full advantage of the spring season, it pays to understand how bass behave in three distinct spring periods: pre-spawn, spawn, and post-spawn.

Generally speaking, the most important factors in reading these periods are water temperature, weed growth and the developing food chain.

Warming water temperature sets off the spawning instinct. Once the bass is done with the spawn, it wants to have a source of cover available where it can recuperate from its spawning frenzy and can exert little effort in catching prey. That's where weed growth comes in.

The penetration of sunlight is a key factor in the pre-spawn period. Some pros have dubbed this early cycle the "pre-spawn picnic" because of the ravenous feeding frenzy bass have at times. During this period bass school up, so the smart angler can also have a "picnic."

Where does one start fishing in spring?

"I would try the northwest side of the lake or coves that run northwest," Says Randy Dearman of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff. "They'll be protected more from the north wind, and anglers won't have that wind blowing on them. The sun will shine on these waters longer. They should be the first pockets of warmth on the lake, so those would be where the fish would generally spawn first."

On the northwest side of the body of water, key in on rocks, rock piles, and other structures that absorb sunlight and, in turn, radiate that heat into the surrounding water. You can bet that bass will be snuggled up close to those "heaters."

As a general rule of thumb, the pre-spawn period comes when the water temperature is 48 degrees to 58 degrees (Fahrenheit). By asking around at bait and tackle shops, you can find out where the spawning beds are, and odds have it they'll be on the north or northwest side of the lake.

If there is a temperature drop, bass move out from the shallow bedding area into deeper waters, but will come back up when there is a corresponding temperature rise. This is the best time to take a lot of bass with crankbaits, No. 7 Fat Raps and Series 600 Bombers.

When the water temperature reaches 58 degrees, and until it exceeds 65 degrees, there will be spawning. However, other factors affecting spawning include bottom conditions and hormone levels.

So, contrary to what some anglers think, all bass in a certain area don't spawn at the same time. Some spawn earlier, others later. At any given time in this temperature frame, you may have bass that are in the pre-spawn, spawn and post-spawn cycles, depending on their own biological clock.

Finally, the post-spawn period has a water temperature range of 65 degrees to 68 degrees—which is a very narrow range. For the most part, bass are just "dead"; they don't bite and the big females are off in the depths recuperating.

Through the spring, no matter which of the periods you fish, the bass fisherman can have a heck of a lot of fun on ultra-light tackle. More likely than not, you will catch more small males and these can provide lots of entertainment when caught on 4-pound test line! Pros favor spinnerbaits, minnows and jigs, and Rapalas during this period.

Another favorite in parts of the country is a weightless spawning rig—a fancy title for a zero-weight plastic worm on a hood rigged Texas-style (hook imbedded into the middle of the worm). Whatever you decide to use, be sure to maintain a slow retrieve.

Be sure to cast beyond your target. In the spawning period, bring the lure back toward the spawning bed, where you should let it agitate the bass guarding the bed.

I generally feel that no harm comes to fish caught during this period if the bass is released so that it can renew its watch on the bed and safeguard the hatch from predators. This insures another generation of America's favorite gamefish.

Have any questions you'd like a bass pro to answer? Jot it down and mail it to "Bassin' with the Pros" at this newspaper. Answers to your questions will appear in a future column.

Eagle soccer camp to feature English coach

HATTIESBURG—Girls and boys ages 8-17 may benefit from an upcoming English-style Golden Eagle Soccer Camp planned at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Set for June 15-20, the camp will feature English Football Association full-badged Barrie Williams.

Williams is a staff-level coach for the National Sports Executive Boys Club of Great Britain, head coach of the Sutton United Football Club, coach of the London suburban soccer team founded in 1898, and is the only person in Great Britain fully certified in soccer and squash. He served as a lecturer with the USM British Studies Program.

Other leaders during the camp will include George Guber, Millsaps varsity soccer coach; Charles Long, Belhaven College varsity soccer coach; Frank Glamser, USM soccer coach; members of the USM soccer team; and the USM trainers.

Each participant will receive a soccer ball, camp t-shirt, nylon duffel bag, and access to USM soccer fields, air-conditioned dormitories, swimming pool, sports arena, bookstore, cafeteria and student union.

The cost for the week-long camp will be $180. This fee for full-time campers will include meals (breakfast Monday through Friday), limited accident insurance, housing, awards, recreational facilities and individual items. Day campers may attend for $130, which includes lunch each day, limited accident insurance, awards, facilities and individual items.

A $40 non-refundable deposit must be made prior to June 9. The balance is payable at registration, which will take place from 4-7 p.m. June 15 in Scott Hall on the USM campus. An orientation session for participants and their parents will begin at 7 p.m. at the registration site.

At registration, tickets will be available for a picnic planned Friday, June 20, at Lake Sehay. Tickets will be $6.50 each for the event, which begins at noon.

For more information about the camp or to pre-register, call the USM Division of Lifelong Learning at (601) 266-4191 or write Southern Station Box 5136, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39406-5136.

National Parks superintendent lands Gulf Island volunteers

"During National Volunteer Week, April 20-27, we would like to thank the individuals who have volunteered so many valuable hours of work at Gulf Islands National Seashore," said Superintendent Jerry Eubanks.

Fourteen volunteers helped with the Bald Eagle reintroduction program on the barrier islands in the Mississippi District of Gulf Islands National Seashore this year.

These volunteers were Jennifer Butera, Chiquita and Hugh Cassibry, George Ellison, Allen Jenkins, Catrina Martin, Judith Molnar, Eric Pyeritz, Karen Rushing, Ruth Shulman, Charles Sloan and Robert Smith.

These volunteers each spent one week at an isolated island site where they fed and cared for the young eagles, made behavioral observations and participated in a post-fledgling radio telemetry study. Dr. Karen Rushing from Ocean Springs volunteered as the veterinarian for the eagle project.

The park has also had the benefit of two talented individuals in the field of photography, they are Mike Hobbs in the Mississippi District and Ed Albrecht in the Florida District.

Mike Hobbs has also contributed volunteer hours working on the information desk in the William M. Colmer Visitor Center at Davis Bayou. Ed Albrecht is credited with some of the park's most beautiful photography in the form of slides and postcards.

"The campground host volunteer program is one of the newest forms of volunteerism at Gulf Islands," said Eubanks. Ken Singleton served as the campground host at the Davis Bayou campground in Mississippi. He also contributed time on the information desk at the William M. Colmer Visitor Center. Volunteers in the Florida District campground at Fort Pickens are Al and Donna Loisels and Stuart and Betty Maxey.

Other former campground hosts in Florida who are scheduled to return to their duties once again are Joyce and Eldon Pederson and Evelyn and Ralph Firskick.

Researchers nurturing eagles on Mississippi Barrier Islands

If you see a bald eagle during a visit to one of Mississippi's barrier islands this summer, you will be witnessing the results of cooperative research efforts by the National Park Service, the state of Florida and the George M. K. Sutton Avian Research Center in Oklahoma to reestablish bald eagle populations in the United States.

Two Gulf Coast Research Laboratory staff members, Ruth Shulman and Judy Molnar of the ichthyoplankton research group, served as field volunteers for part of the project being conducted at Gulf Islands National Seashore (GINS) under the direction of research biologist Dr. Ted Simons.

Field volunteers each spent one week at an isolated island site where they fed and cared for the birds, made behavioral observations and collected data for a post-fledgling telemetry study which uses radio signals to track bird movement.

Bald eagles once occurred naturally on Mississippi's barrier islands, but were extirpated due to illegal hunting activities and environmental factors, such as pesticide use and habitat encroachment. The island habitat provides an excellent location for the station because its isolation provides protection for the birds and small game and fish are available for food sources. Young eagles also like to steal fish from the ospreys on the island, and old osprey nests are available for the birds to occupy.

Southern bald eagles once bred from east Texas to the Carolinas. Today, only Florida has a healthy bald eagle population, with 326 nesting pairs noted during the 1984 census. Researchers felt that the future of the birds would be more secure if they were breeding across a wider geographical range.

While planning an eagle reintroduction program for Oklahoma in 1984, Sutton Research Center director Dr. Steve Sherrod suggested a technique previously used with peregrine falcons and California condors which removes recently-laid eggs from wild bird nests.

If eggs are removed early enough in the incubation cycle, adults will "recycle" or lay a second clutch of eggs, doubling the potential number of young with negligible effects on donor birds.

GINS was one of several hacking sites in the southeastern U.S. and Oklahoma that received two-month-old eaglets hatched and nurtured by the Sutton staff from eggs retrieved from nests in Florida's Ocala National Forest. Four of the 28 eaglets in this year's study were allocated for the GINS effort.

Hacking is an ancient method used by falconers to accustom human-reared birds of prey to free flight and to teach them how to hunt for food in the wild.

At about 12 weeks of age, the GINS birds were transferred to an artificial nest atop a 30-foot hack tower at the island site. Metal bars on the cage to prevent premature flight were removed once the birds reached fledgling age. Birds at hack are free to fly, but can return to the platform for safety and food if they are unsuccessful at catching prey.

If these four birds survive the four to six years necessary for eagles to reach breeding age, they are expected to respond to instinctive urgings and return to the Gulf Coast to nest. If this happens, an important milestone will be reached in the reestablishment of this endangered species.

Dr. Simons said that researchers from agencies involved in the bald eagle restoration program will meet at GINS this summer to evaluate the effectiveness of the project and formulate plans for the future.

WHO'S DRIVING HOME?

Alas, the party's over. The music is playing softly in the background, friends are saying good night and the clean up detail is beginning. But for Brian, Jennifer, Tracey and Rick, who added drinking to their evening, a decision has to be made. Approximately 46 teenagers will be killed this year in Mississippi by drinking and driving or riding with someone who does. It's your choice.

Bike-foot races biathlon scheduled at Carey College

The First Annual Biathlon Challenge will be held at William Carey College on Saturday, April 26, beginning at 8 a.m. A One Mile Fun Run will follow at 10 a.m. The Biathlon will consist of a 5K run and a 20K bike race. Both courses will begin and end on Carey's Gulfport campus. Trophies will be presented to the top three finishers in each Biathlon age category for male and female participants. Trophies will also be presented to the first and second place male and female finishers in the One Mile Fun Run. Pepsi Painter Caps will be provided for the first 300 entrants, and free refreshments will be served at the end of the race.

The Biathlon registration fee is $6 with a $2 late charge for those who enter after April 23, and The Fun Run registration fee is $3. Entry forms are available at Carey, 1856 East Beach Drive, and WQID-FM, 574 DeBuys Road. Late registration will also be available on the morning of the race from 7 to 7:30 a.m. Biathlon Challenge '86 is sponsored by Carey, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company of Gulfport, Mississippi Power Company, and WQID-FM. The host is the Gulf Coast Running Club. For more information contact Joe Moore at Carey, 865-1500.

YOU AUTO KNOW THIS: After years during which many RV owners resisted buying new vehicles because of high interest rates and cut down on long trips because of high fuel costs, the trend is turning. Those old RVs may be past repair. Gas prices are down. Result: Demand for RVs is going up. Dealers once ready to accept your best offer are now ready to resist anything that lessens their potential for highest profit. One bit of advice from a veteran shopper: Hold off buying until mid-summer when the demand is down. You'll still have plenty of time to enjoy your new RV. Also, check rental prices. Often as the seller's market goes up, rentals come down.

Drivers testing new allowances prior to May 4 Winston 500

TALLADEGA, ALA. — Winners of seven of the nine most recent Winston 500's have scheduled testing sessions at Alabama International Motor Speedway during the next two weeks to prepare for the 1986 Winston 500 on May 4.

The speedway has been booked for the most intensive fortnight of testing in the track's history since Monday and continuing through Saturday.

"I've never seen anything like it. We have had pre-Daytona 500 testing to get the cars ready for the new season, but we've never had this many teams come back to get their cars ready for the Winston 500," said AIMS General Manager Don Naman.

Naman attributes the heavy testing schedule to three factors. First, the purse for the Winston 500 has been increased by more than $100,000, to a record $814,570.

Second, the Winston 500 is the second leg of the Winston Million, and no driver other than Daytona 500 winner Geoff Bodine will have a shot at it this year unless they win the Winston 500.

Third, the recent Nascar ruling allowing air dams, higher spoilers and bigger carburetors has the teams wanting to know exactly how their cars will perform at Talladega.

Heading the list of drivers testing will be former Winston 500 winners Bill Elliott (1985), Cale Yarborough (1984, 1978), Darrell Waltrip (1982, 1977) and Bobby Allison (1981, 1979).

Others slated to test include Terry Labonte, Geoff Bodine, Ken Schrader, Dave Marcis, Tommy Ellis, Bobby Hillin and Arca driver Grant Adcox.

Exercise Myths

More and more people are getting involved in regular exercise programs and finding their lives are improving as a result of their efforts. Yet some exercise myths continue to prevail.

The American Heart Association has the facts on five common misconceptions about exercise.

Myth 1: Exercising makes you tired. The Fact: As their bodies get more in shape, most people feel exercising gives them more energy than before. Regular, brisk exercise can also help you resist fatigue and stress.

Myth 2: Exercise takes too much time. The Fact: Regular exercise does not have to take more than about 25 to 30 minutes, three times a week. Once you have established a comfortable exercise routine, exercising becomes a natural part of your life.

Myth 3: All exercises give you the same benefits. The Fact: All physical activities can give you enjoyment. But only regular, brisk, and sustained exercises such as brisk walking, jogging, or swimming improve the efficiency of your heart and lungs. Other activities do not give you these benefits, although they may increase flexibility or muscle strength.

Myth 4: The older you are, the less exercise you need. The Fact: With age we tend to become less physically active, and therefore need to make sure we are getting enough exercise. In general, middle-aged and older people benefit from regular exercise just as young people do. What is important is tailoring the exercise program to your own fitness level.

Myth 5: You have to be athletic to exercise. The Fact: Most brisk activities do not require any special athletic abilities. In fact, many people who found school sports difficult have discovered that these other activities are easy to do and enjoyable.

Check with your doctor before beginning an exercise program if you are over 45 years old, have any physical problems, or have a family history of premature coronary artery disease. And then enjoy the benefits of an active lifestyle.

Millsaps slates awards banquet

JACKSON— Five outstanding alumni athletes and a longtime booster of Millsaps College's athletic program will be honored by their alma mater on Friday, April 25 at the College's annual All Sports Award Banquet.

Kenneth Till, a Jackson physician and Millsaps' team doctor, will be awarded the Distinguished Athletic Service Award by Millsaps Athletic Director J. Harper Davis.

A 1958 Millsaps graduate, Till received the MD degree from the University of Mississippi School of Medicine and entered general practice in Jackson in 1963. As a student he earned letters in football, basketball and baseball.

Alumni to be inducted into the Majors Hall of Fame are David 'Bo' Carter, Elizabeth Allen Lyle, Fred J. Ezelle, all of Jackson; Bennie Kirkland of Madison; and Tommy Fowlkes of Abingdon, Va.

"This is always a big night for everyone associated with Millsaps and our athletic program," Davis said. "We are extremely pleased to induct these former athletes into the Hall of Fame, in recognition not only of their excellence as student athletes but of their daily contributions to society as well."

Also during the banquet, to be held at 6 p.m. in the Boyd Campbell Student Center cafeteria, awards will be presented to outstanding student athletes who participated in intercollegiate varsity play this past academic year.

Carter, a native of Ashland, Ky., attended Millsaps from 1969 to 1973 where he lettered in baseball and basketball for all four years. An accounting major, he now heads the accounting department for Trustmark National Bank in Jackson.

Lyle, who played on the 1973 Millsaps men's tennis team, was the first woman to ever participate in the NCAA Division III men's tournament. A 1976 cum laude graduate from Millsaps, she is now tennis director and head professional at the Colonial Country Club of Jackson.

Ezelle, a native of Birmingham, Ala., received the B.S. in accounting from Millsaps in 1937. Lettering in football, baseball, basketball and tennis, Ezelle served as football captain and was named All-State quarterback. A combat veteran of World War II, he received the Purple Heart and Combat Presidential Citation. He is the owner of Mississippi Bedding Company.

Kirkland, of Madison, is a 1956 Millsaps graduate. A member of the Majors football and baseball teams, he played professional baseball following graduation.

Fowlkes, a native of Monroe, La., received the B.A. in history from Millsaps in 1965. He earned the J.D. degree in 1960 from the University of Virginia and is now a practicing law partner in Abingdon, Va. At Millsaps, he lettered in both football and baseball.

Tickets for banquet, which is open to the public, may be purchased at the door for $8.

For more information, contact J. Harper Davis and 354-5201, ext. 289.

UPDATE: There's a new contact for those of you who want to take part in the United States Canoe Association's (USCA) 19th Annual National Marathon Races which will be held this year at Barren River at Bowling Green, Kentucky from August 15 to 17. This could be a real either/or situation. Either you register in time or you don't get to dip your oars in the event of your choice.

Many people are preparing for camping trips with youngsters. These experiences are good learning periods for all of us. With thanks to my good friends at Oregon Wildlife, I'll cite a few examples of how we can learn to be more observing of wildlife that often mimic one another. (Answers below.) 1. A gopher snake is relatively harmless (unless you're a rodent or one of its usually preferred delicacies). A rattlesnake is not harmless. You spot a brown snake with dark markings. Which is it? Rattler or gopher? Clue: The snake has a flattened head. 2. On a headland you see marine animals at rest on some offshore rocks. They're light-colored with dark spots. Are you looking at seals or sea lions? 3. A long-eared bunny uses her long strong legs to jump away as you approach. Is she a jackrabbit or a cottontail? (Centerfold doesn't count.) 4. You're in the woods. A small, slender animal about 14 inches long from head to the end of its long, black-tipped tail runs by. It has a yellowish white belly with brown chest and back. Weasel, mink or ermine?

The answers are: 1. WARNING! IT COULD BE EITHER A GOPHER OR A RATTLESNAKE. The gopher sometimes mimics the rattler by flattening its head to make you stay away. And some rattlers don't always bother to warn you. So tread carefully. 2. You're looking at harbor seals. The giveaway is a lighter bluish-gray fur with black spots and irregular white rings and loops. Sea lions tend to be browner. 3. If you remember your Peter Cottontail storybook illustrations you know that you've just been passed by a jackrabbit. Cottontails have shorter legs and ears. 4. Go ahead. Call it a weasel. He won't be insulted. He's a successful specimen of his species. Ermine are smaller and have shorter tails. Mink are much larger, darker and usually don't have the lighter belly and chest. Both weasels and ermine may turn white in snowy areas.

Private developer sought for Adams state park

JACKSON— The Natchez State Park in Adams County has the potential for becoming a profit-making opportunity for private investors, according to officials of the R & D Center and the Bureau of Recreation and Parks.

The two state agencies are seeking proposals from private investors interested in developing the park site.

The 4,000-acre park site, which was established as a result of a state recreation complex because of its proximity to Natchez and Vicksburg, which attract substantial tourist trade.

A new concept for Mississippi, privatization for state parks is being practiced in approximately 17 of the 50 states that were contacted by staff of the R & D Center.

Under this concept, private investors are sought to plan, design, construct, operate, and maintain the development in a cooperative arrangement with the state.

The park site is leased by the investor from the state on a 25-year lease with an option to renew the lease for another 25 years.

Prospective proposers will be given a briefing and inspection of the park site. Specific guidelines for submitting a proposal can be obtained from Joe Leach, manager of Special Services at the Mississippi Research and Development Center, 3825 Ridgewood Road, Jackson, MS 39211, or by telephoning 601/982-6369.

The deadline for submitting proposals is June 9, 1986.

Coast Guard publishes list of current boating safety recalls

The U.S. Coast Guard has published a listing of current safety recall campaigns being conducted by various recreational boat and engine manufacturers across the country.

The list identifies the make and model of boat or engine involved in the recall campaign, with a brief description of the safety problem responsible for the recall.

Manufacturers are required to mail a recall notice to all purchasers or owners, whose locations are known, whenever a safety defect is found. A safety defect is defined as either a failure to comply with Coast Guard Safety Standards, or the creation of a substantial risk of personal injury to the public.

Persons who own boat or engine models on the recall list, but who have not yet received a recall notice from the manufacturer, may verify whether they are included in the recall by contacting the Coast Guard's toll-free Boating Safety Hotline at 800-368-5647.

Consumers wishing to report a safety problem may also call the hotline.

Center Stage to open off-Broadway hit tonight

In a change from its previously publicized schedule, Center Stage, Cowan Road, Gulfport, will open with "The Dining Room" on April 17 for eight performances.

Subsequent dates are April 18-20 and April 22-26. Curtain time is 8 p.m., except April 20, when a special matinee for senior citizens is scheduled at 3 p.m.

The comedy by A. R. Gurney Jr., which opened off-Broadway in 1981 and ran for almost two years, takes an affectionate and often hilarious look at a vanishing breed — the American upper-middle class.

Directed by Chuck White, "The Dining Room" cast includes David Delk, Susan Gray, Michael O'Neill, Ruth Ann Pecoul, Sue Turman, and Chuck White.

Reservations are required and may be made by calling 896-6455.

The box office will be open from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. beginning April 14. A 24-hour answering service is available.

Tickets are $4.75 for Wednesday and Thursday and $6 for Friday and Saturday.

A special price of $3.50 is available to students Wednesday through Friday and to senior citizens at the Sunday matinee. On opening night, complimentary hors d'oeuvres will be served.

Ground-breaking ceremonies were held on Saturday, April 5, for a new Center Stage to be located at the Petit Bois Specialty Center, off Edgewater Gulf Drive in Biloxi. With the final phase of the building fund-raising program getting underway, the theater group hopes to be in the new facility for the 1986-87 season.

KNEE FIT

Pain in the knees is not only irritating, it can be debilitating to the lifestyle if allowed to progress. Many knee pain sufferers are former athletes who were injured at some point. Football and basketball players, skiers, and many runners often have trouble with their knees stemming from severe stress to the bone and joints. Unfortunately, it is the price many pay for the glory of being an athlete.

Runner's knee is a condition in which there is pain in the kneecap. The back of the kneecap fits into a groove in the lower part of the femur, which is the long bone of the thigh. When you run, the kneecap should move up and down in that groove and not rub against the femur. Pain occurs when the kneecap rubs against the femur. The most common cause of runner's knee is an excessive inward rolling of the leg and foot and excessive pulling of the kneecap in the opposite direction. Inserts in both walking and running shoes will support the arches to limit rolling of the foot.

Bursitis is an inflammation of a bursa, which is a soft sac that acts as a lubricant between the tendon and bone, or skin and bone, near the joints. It is sometimes called housemaid's knee because of the stress caused by the constant pressure of kneeling. It produces a sudden onset of intense pain and there is significant limitation of use or movement. Rest or immobilization is every important to avoid further irritation.

Degenerative joint disease is most common after a sports injury and is caused by the destruction of cartilage and a degeneration of the bone at the joints from years of wear and tear. Cracking can be heard upon movement. There is some loss of activity and when bad weather is approaching.

Next time: Alternative and strengthening exercises for knee pain sufferers.

several awards, including Mississippi's Woman Realtor of the Year. She has twice been named West Coast Realtor of the Year.

She is a past president of the West Coast Board of Realtors, past regional vice president of the National Board of Realtors and past governor of the State of Mississippi Women's Council of Realtors.

Soybeans and cotton

Major crops share high yields, different levels of income

Mississippi cotton and soybean farmers produced above-average yields in 1985, but farm value generated from the two crops headed in opposite directions.

The farm value of the state's soybean crop is down 28 percent from 1984, while the value for cotton is up slightly in 1985, said Dr. Bob Williams, head of the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Economics Department.

The value for soybeans in Mississippi dropped to $347 million in 1985, down sharply from $484 million in 1984. The 1985 value for cotton is estimated at $502 million, up from $581 million in 1984.

With a slight increase in value, cotton maintained its place as the state's most valuable crop for the fifth straight year. Despite its sharp drop in value, soybeans held on to fourth place among the state's agricultural enterprises.

Although the combined value of cotton and soybeans is down $128 million from 1984, the two crops still accounted for almost one-third of the total value of more than $2.9 billion in Mississippi farm production in 1985, Williams said.

The state's 1985 soybean crop of 2.7 million acres was the smallest since 1974, while the 1.1 million acres of cotton planted in Mississippi in 1985 were up slightly from 1984.

Williams said the lowest soybean prices in 10 years and late-season weather problems reduced the value of the state's soybean crop to the lowest level since 1975.

"The profit picture for soybean producers is highly unfavorable with current prices," Williams said. "Only a small number of farmers who produced high yields or had lower costs will make any profit this year."

Late-season weather problems cost soybean growers in Mississippi an estimated $26 million in lost yields and quality, Williams said.

The weather problems also could lower final yields from the estimate of 26 bushels per acre projected in November. Soybean yields in Mississippi usually average about 22 bushels per acre.

Soybean yields of 26 bushels per acre would be the second highest average on record for Mississippi farmers. The record level of 29 bushels per acre was set in 1979.

Williams said the profit picture for the state's cotton producers is a little brighter since low prices are expected to trigger deficiency payments to producers. Payments on the 1985 crop are expected to reach about 24 cents a pound.

"These payments, plus high yields, will help most cotton producers in Mississippi make at least some profit on the 1985 crop," Williams said.

Cotton producers in Mississippi produced an average 785 pounds per acre in 1985, up from 787 pounds in 1984 and second only to 853 pounds in 1982 as the all-time record crop.

Most cotton farmers in the state were able to harvest their crops before late October rains entered the state. About 80 percent of the total crop was harvested by mid-October.

Williams said cotton plantings in Mississippi in 1986 should be near the 1985 level of 1.1 million acres, while soybean plantings could drop to 2.5 million acres.

Profit potential for the 1986 cotton crop will be poor to fair, Williams said. Little improvement is expected in soybean profits, although lower plantings nationwide in 1986 could have a positive impact on prices.

From Neighborhood to City Watch

By Glenda Segars
Tupelo School System
The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization.

Billy McCarty of Tupelo is not on the outside looking in anymore. McCarty was elected to the Tupelo Board of Aldermen in June 1985 on a plea for more and better police protection for the citizens of his Yates Acres neighborhood.

When he retired from the Gulf Oil Company in 1983, after 31 years of service, McCarty directed his energy toward the establishment of a neighborhood watch program for the Yates Acres area of Tupelo. He and several other residents were concerned about the vandalism, peeping Toms, speeding, failure to stop at stop signs and beer parties in the streets.

"Every Friday night was Halloween - the egg throwing, yard-rolling, and mail-box pilfering had gotten completely out of hand," one Yates Acres resident said. "The police would come when they could, but there simply were not enough officers to respond to every call of vandalism."

After preliminary meetings in private homes, more than 200 people from the Yates Acres area attended a general meeting at Thomas Street Elementary School.

Lt. Richard Carleton of the Tupelo Police Department gave a presentation about the neighborhood watch programs in another area of the city. Officers were elected at the meeting (Billy McCarty was elected president) and a course of action was set to get citizens involved in surveillance.

Of the 325 homes in the neighborhood, 87 percent enrolled in the program. Street captains and co-captains were appointed for each of the 18 streets. The $5 dues from each household were used to purchase neighborhood watch signs for every street and decals for every house and automobile.

For several months the captains patrolled the streets almost every weekend. Instances of vandalism diminished almost immediately.

"When we explained to those kids that egg-throwing and yard-rolling carried a $100 fine, they were glad to quit before we called the police," McCarty related.

The speeding and running of stop signs, however, did not stop. The watch captains, of course, had no authority over the traffic violators.

They could only report what they saw to the police. Surveys were made regularly at busy intersections and the results were sent to the police department.

A typical report stated that of 108 cars which passed through one intersection between 6 and 8:30 a.m. on a Monday morning, 62 did not stop at the stop sign.

"The police were always sympathetic," said McCarty, "but the answer was always the same, 'We are short-handed and simply don't have enough men to cover every area.'"

Frustrated at the situation and responding to the encouragement of his many friends and neighbors, Billy McCarty decided to run for alderman in the spring of 1985. He modestly admits that his involvement in the neighborhood watch program might have helped him win the election.

In the four months since he took office seven additional police officers have been added to the force and the number of tickets written for traffic violations, DUIs, and DWIs has risen considerably.

No, Billy McCarty is not on the outside looking in. He is inside where the action is. And a lot of his friends give him credit for a great deal of that action.

4-H LAND JUDGING

We are dependent on soils and to a certain extent, good soils are dependent on us and the use we make of them. Soils are the natural bodies on which plants grow. We enjoy and use these plants because of their beauty and ability to supply fiber and food for man and animals.

Our very living standard is often determined by the quality of our soils and the quality of plants and animals grown.

In the 4-H Land Judging program, 4-H members learn treatments needed to maintain the highest production in different types of soils. They also learn how to control erosion and by certain methods they determine the proper crop to produce in each soil type.

4-H land judging contests are held each year as part of the continual 4-H education process.

A. Dear R.K.:

A four-bedroom house complete with fireplace, sun deck and Jacuzzi recently sold in Houston for $7,000. The house was one of 250 recently auctioned by the Veterans Administration as part of repossessed properties.

Similar auctions have also occurred recently in Detroit, Portland and Tucson. The houses were seized by foreclosure, which was blamed on falling energy prices and other economic problems that have plagued various regions, particularly Houston.

The Veterans Administration guarantees 60 percent of the loan amount or $27,500, whichever is less. Lenders making VA loans typically fund four times the amount of the guarantee, so a full guarantee would result in a loan up to $110,000.

Each county may enter one or two individual contestants or a team of three or four members in both the Junior or Senior 4-H Land Judging Contests.

We all should be concerned about our soil and there is no better way to learn than through the 4-H Land Judging Program.

If you are interested in learning more about this program, contact Daney Jackson at the county Extension office.

After foreclosing, VA auctions the property to try to recoup the amount of insurance collected by the lending agency. For the recent auction in Houston, each buyer had to pay at least $2,000 cash or a cashier's check. Property that sold for more than $10,000 required 10 percent in a few days and the balance in 45 days.

If payment is not made, then the $2,000 is lost. The most unusual sale involved the purchase of a three-bedroom house for $4,000, in which the purchaser planned to charge the purchase price on two Visa cards.

The buyer planned on using the property for rental purposes and felt no need to go to the time and trouble of acquiring traditional financing.

VA reports that it currently has over 4,000 other homes it needs to sell.

Point of Law

(Prepared by the Mississippi State Bar. Some legal rights may vary from locality to locality. Always consult an attorney when in doubt about your rights.)

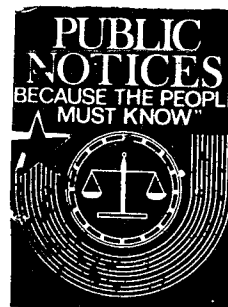

Q: Do students have the right to their school record?

A: In 1974, Congress passed the Educational Rights and Privacy Act. This provides that students of the age of 18 or older and their parents who are at schools that receive federal funds.

Moreover, the parent or student is given an opportunity to review the content of school records. If they believe to be inaccurate or misleading, the parent or student makes a reasonable request for an interpretation of the records, the school must comply.

Q: We did not get a birth certificate at my daughter's birth. Now, years later, I drew one up myself including the time she was born, length, weight and what she was named. I signed the document and had the doctor who delivered her sign it. Is this document legal?

A: The answer is, no, it is not a legal document. But it is possible to obtain a legal birth certificate through the State Board of Health in Jackson. If problems result, there is a procedure whereby you can obtain a valid birth certificate by filing a petition in the Chancery Court of the county of your residence.

PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE
The County of Hancock, Mississippi is considering applying to the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, Department of Community Development, for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant of up to $750,000.00. The State of Mississippi has been allocated approximately 21 million dollars that will be made available to cities and counties on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities.

These funds are to be used for one of the following purposes:

1. To be used to moderate income persons.

2. To aid in the prevention or elimination of blight.

3. To meet other community development needs having a particular urgency because existing conditions pose a serious and immediate threat to the health or well-being of the community.

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing, public facilities and economic development. More specific details regarding eligible activities, program requirements, and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing which will be held at Hancock County Courthouse, County Board Room, on May 8, 1986, at 10:00 a.m. The purpose of this hearing will be to obtain input into the development of the application.

Published by order of the Board of Supervisors dated this 15th day of April, 1986.

Customer satisfaction in higher education: A modest proposal

(The following article resulted from a grant from the Mississippi Committee for the Humanities to the Mississippi Press Association. The opinions expressed are those of the author and not of either organization.)

By Miriam J. Shillingsburg
Department of English
Mississippi State University

Taxpayers and newspaper columnists often complain that higher education ought to take a lesson from business and industry.

Yet few studies, fewer theories, and no consensus exist about how universities ought to be managed. It may be helpful to think that the central mission of the college or university is to provide service to the customer: students are the customers; faculty are the service workers; clerical staff the production workers; department heads and deans are the managers who look after effectiveness and efficiency.

Customers have a right to expect service and may "take their business elsewhere" if not satisfied.

The Harvard Business Review has suggested that most service institutions are simultaneously "pure," "mixed," and "quasimanufacturing" organizations.

The "customer-contact" theory asserts that the "extent of customer contact" has "a direct bearing on the way we design and operate organizations," and is a "major variable" in how well they perform.

Service organization jobs fall into two main categories, requiring different tasks and skills. Low customer-contact jobs, like many clerical tasks, require production skills and are conducted in a clearly structured or routine environment. Success is measured as efficiency and is evaluated by management.

In contrast, the high customer-contact jobs require "inter-personal skills and knowledge of policies."

Because customers come in at unpredictable rates for unpredictable time spans with unpredictable problems, the high-contact worker remains in a "turbulent, ill-structured environment." Success is measured by effectiveness and lies in the customer's perception of the quality of contact time.

This analogy between universities and service organizations reveals one obvious problem with academic units: the manager has contact with too few customers/students and operates in a too-clearly structured mode. He has forgotten, or closed his door to, the unpredictability of student demands.

Some managers don't even talk to students, sacrificing "effectiveness" in trying to maximize "efficiency." Most people would agree that education should be effective - which often means individualized. An educator who "covers the material" in assembly-line fashion may be highly efficient, and yet be an ineffective teacher.

A recent study of 40 colleges identified four major "domains" of effectiveness.

Effectiveness in external adaptation, which translates into high public awareness and success in acquiring resources, usually costs the institution, especially a state-supported institution, internal effectiveness in the scholarly, academic, and extra-curricular domains.

In short, effectiveness in fund-raising detracts from faculty-student contact in three areas: classes may be overloaded (decreased effectiveness) in order to generate more money (increased efficiency); faculty may be diverted into recruiting prospective students, shortchanging present students; faculty may be burdened with additional record-keeping or proposal-writing, resulting in neglected professional development.

Faculty tend to become involved in administrative decisions, decreasing scholarly activity; faculty unions emphasize economics and benefits more than scholarship and research; and faculty perceive their roles as competitive rather than cooperative, especially in research.

Clearly, the customer-contact model of organization might help universities because it emphasizes effectiveness in its customer service divisions and efficiency in its clerical and managerial divisions.

It is loosely coupled to allow for unpredictable pupil needs, emphasizing customer satisfaction which is important to student morale.

Its parts also function relatively non-dependently, and a faculty member can, in the absence of customer-contact demands, "uncouple" himself and go to the library or laboratory for some faculty development.

Principals group seeks warning on drug-oriented motion pictures

Calling drug usage a monumental national problem which is "sapping the vitality of our youth and endangering the very future of our nation," the National Association of Secondary School Principals is seeking warning labels in advertisements for movies that glorify drugs.

"We believe that movies are having a dramatic impact on young people's attitudes about drugs," said Scott Thomson, NASSP executive director. "Parents need to be aware of movies in which drugs are promoted. Our aim is not to inhibit free expression in movies, but to spread information, to identify movies which could encourage youngsters to try drugs."

The NASSP is calling for federal legislation which will require all advertising, theater displays, billboards, or other printed advertising to include a warning which reads, "This motion picture contains portrayals of the use of illicit drugs in a manner which may reasonably influence minors to experiments with illegal and harmful substances, it is therefore rated D."

"The use and abuse of illegal drugs has become one of the most pernicious and persistent problems faced by American society in the 20th century," Thomson contended. "During the past two decades this plague has spread downward from the adult population and college-age students into our high schools, junior high schools, and even into the elementary grades," he exclaimed.

"The NASSP has become increasingly concerned that drugs are promoted to our students not only by adult pushers and by peers who are users, but also by representatives of certain legitimate elements of society. The most insidious of these, because they reach youth so effectively, are motion picture producers. Next to television, the motion picture industry probably has the greatest influence on youth of all sources of information and entertainment."

Certain films even promote usage of drugs, according to Thomson.

"The problem becomes especially serious when films portray the use of illegal drugs in an attractive and sometimes even glamorous manner, because this suggests to youth the desirability of their use," he indicated. "To make matters worse, many of these films, such as 'Animal House' and 'Fast Times at Ridgemont High,' are specifically directed at the younger audience," he continued.

"When students see such a movie with dramatic visual effects and appealing music, the teacher who is responsible for instruction about the dangers of drugs and has only a piece of chalk and blackboard as a visual aid is at a great disadvantage," according to Thomson.

"Clearly, the Constitution does not permit, and we would not favor, any effort to prevent film makers and writers from expressing their ideas or opinions even if we find them disagreeable or offensive," Thomson said. "At the same time, we firmly believe that parents have a right to know something of the nature of the content of films being presented to their children."

"This right to know certainly has been the objective of the Motion Picture Association's voluntary rating program, and we commend that. But where a film presents the use of an illegal substance like cocaine in such a manner as to promote usage, we believe that a greater effort must be made to ensure that parents are fully advised," he feels.

Dinner to honor retiring PRC president

POPLARVILLE—A dinner honoring retiring Pearl River College president Dr. Marvin R. White is set for Saturday, May 10, at 5 p.m. in the PRC Coliseum.

The Pearl River College Board of Trustees is sponsoring the dinner to show their appreciation for White's 18 years of service as president of Mississippi's pioneer junior college. White will retire June 30, ending his 38-year career in public education in Mississippi.

White served as a math instructor and coach at Ocean Springs in 1948-49 before coming home to teach math and coach at Poplarville in 1949-51.

In 1952, he became principal of the Pearl River County Agricultural High School. White remained in that position until 1960 when he was named registrar of Pearl River College. In 1964, he became dean of the college.

Tickets for the Appreciation Dinner are $25 per couple or $15 for an individual. To order by mail, send a check to the Marvin R. White Appreciation Fund, c/o Larry L. Stanford, Station A, Box 155, Poplarville, MS 39470.

SENSITIVE PARENTING

Young Teenagers Focus On Themselves

By Norine Barnes
Child and Family Development Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

To the young adolescent, ages 13 to 15, the subject of greatest interest is himself or herself. Young adolescents do not distinguish between what others may be thinking and what they are thinking themselves. They assume that every other person is as concerned with their behavior and appearance as they are. So when Mary sees two of her girlfriends whispering in the school hallway, she knows that they are talking about her. Or when Jeff sees his parents looking his way, he is certain they are looking at him. Therefore, the hours the young adolescent spends in front of the mirror or worrying about pimples are not only self-critical, they are also directed toward satisfying the audience which the young teen feels is always watching.

Parents often find the teen's preoccupation with self rather annoying, selfish and unhealthy. This preoccupation with self is the result of the young teen's style of thinking. It is not deliberate. Also, the teen's concern with what others think is not entirely unjustified. Young teens are very critical of one another. They pay attention to details. During this time, children think that everyone is interested in them and that they are very special. This feeling of uniqueness is demonstrated when your teen indicates that no one has ever before felt as he or she does, suffered so much, loved so deeply or been so misunderstood. The teen may say, "You don't understand." In this case, you may find it helpful to say, "Perhaps I don't understand, but I'm sorry you are unhappy. If you want me to, I'll be glad to try to help." In this way you can express caring without having to argue over whether or not you truly understand. In addition, your teen can ask for help if it's wanted. By age 15 or 16 this kind of egocentrism begins to diminish. The more teens have a chance to talk about their personal theories and listen to those of other teens, the sooner they arrive at a mature level of thinking. At about this time, the teen is likely to begin to reestablish the warm relationships with parents which might have become strained during the earlier teen years. The task is to establish the special relationship which can exist between two adults who are parent and child.

SHAKESPEARE FESTIVAL—M. Audley Keck plays Shylock to Pamela Marquis-Kidd's Portia in a University of New Orleans production of 'The Merchant of Venice' which runs April 18-May 4. Also to be presented as part of the second annual Louisiana Shakespeare festival will be 'Twelfth Night' which opens April 24 at Le Petit Theatre.

ALCOHOLICS DON'T SUFFER BY THEMSELVES...

THE WHOLE FAMILY SUFFERS.

It's not an unusual story. Take a successful individual who has everything going for him. Great family, promising career and life's daily problems he tries to solve with alcohol — and sometimes drugs. Eventually his problems will grow to include chemical dependency. Can his family handle that?

What about the successful business woman? She's attractive, personable — and an alcoholic. Her favorite hobby — drinking martinis at lunch and after work. How long can she stay on top? Her home life as a wife and mother has already turned into a nightmare for her family.

ALCOHOLICS DON'T SUFFER ALONE.

At GULF OAKS HOSPITAL & CLINIC, chemical dependence is viewed as a family illness and recovery for the entire family is considered essential. If a family member or close friend is destroying their life by alcohol or drug indulgence, they need help. Professional medical help. At GULF OAKS, family involvement is an integral part of our program. Team members work with the family to help them understand the patient's problem as an illness.

DON'T SUFFER ALONE. HELP IS AVAILABLE — AND SO NEAR.

School districts seek to identify children in need of special education services

The Hancock County and Bay St. Louis School Districts are participating in an ongoing effort to identify, locate, and evaluate children from birth through 21 years of age who are physically, mentally, communicatively or emotionally handicapped.

Programs that are available to these districts serve students who are educationally handicapped, multi-handicapped, emotionally handicapped, physically handicapped, and learning disabled.

Speech and language therapy is also available in these school districts.

Cooperative efforts with other school districts provide services for deaf/hard-of-hearing, visually impaired, and emotionally handicapped students who need services not provided in the local districts.

All information which could identify an individual child as being in need of special education services will be maintained by the Hancock County and Bay St. Louis School Districts and will be provided to other agencies only in accordance with the Family Rights and Privacy Act.

The earlier a child who is in need of special education can be identified, the greater the opportunity for providing appropriate educational experiences to meet that child's individual educational needs.

Continued assistance and cooperation in finding children who might be in need of services for the handicapped is most important.

Anyone who is aware of a child who demonstrates characteristics or behavior indicative of a handicap please contact Jeannette Handshoe, special education coordinator, Hancock County School District, 467-4466, or Gloria Dean, assistant

SENSITIVE PARENTING

Four-Letter Words Get Attention Fast

By Norine Barnes
Child and Family Development Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

A child's use of a four-letter word often brings a parental five-letter word response! Parental reaction ranges from alarm, anger and worry to embarrassment, disgust and a feeling of failure.

Obscene, profane or otherwise inappropriate four-letter words have a magical quality to most children. At a very early age they learn that these words are not like most other words in their vocabulary.

These words have a certain power—the power to produce a reaction in their parents. Usually this reaction is emotional and is almost instantaneous. A child knows that his mother will "have a fit" when he says "No other word he uses has this same power."

The child becomes fascinated with his use of a particular word and creatively tries out the word in different settings. The fact that certain words are forbidden increases the child's fascination with the word. A child may think it is "cute." One mother remarked that she was totally horrified when her young daughter used such a word at the annual family reunion.

"Where did she learn it?" That's difficult to say. The child may have overheard it in a conversation. If she has an older brother or sister, or plays with older children, she may have picked it up from one of them. TV is another possible source.

Seldom does a young child know what a specific word means. All the child knows is that the word must be important because Mom or Dad really reacts. It is different with this or that word. It brings a reaction.

Some parents feel that they must punish the child. They may even resort to physical punishment. They may threaten to wash the child's mouth out with soap. Or they may explode! Each of these approaches may momentarily stop the use of the word. But it will probably not last except in the parent's presence.

None of these approaches show any regard to the child's feelings. These parents react with abhorrence rather than with understanding. All of these approaches simply reinforce the idea that these words have emotional power.

Many parents find that a very casual response such as "we don't use this word in our family. We say..." works very well. Others will say, "Mommy does not use this word. You listen to how Mommy talks!" In these examples, the parent is helping the young child learn appropriate social behavior. No importance is placed on the word and no negative reward is given.

ALCOHOLICS DON'T SUFFER BY THEMSELVES...

THE WHOLE FAMILY SUFFERS.

It's not an unusual story. Take a successful individual who has everything going for him. Great family, promising career and life's day problems he tries to solve with alcohol — and sometimes drugs. Eventually his problems will grow to include chemical dependency. Can his family handle that?

What about the successful business woman? She's attractive, personable — and an alcoholic. Her favorite hobby — drinking martinis at lunch and after work. How long can she stay on top? Her home life as a wife and mother has already turned into a nightmare for her family.

ALCOHOLICS DON'T SUFFER ALONE.

At GULF OAKS HOSPITAL & CLINIC, chemical dependence is viewed as a family illness and recovery for the entire family is considered essential. If a family member or close friend is destroying their life by alcohol or drug indulgence, they need help. Professional medical help. At GULF OAKS, family involvement is an integral part of our program. Team members work with the family to help them understand the patient's problem as an illness.

DON'T SUFFER ALONE. HELP IS AVAILABLE — AND SO NEAR.

Dr. Wm. L. POWELL

Violent, involuntary contractions of a muscle or group of muscles initiate the painful condition of muscle spasms. They can occur in almost any muscle of the body. Most frequently they occur in the back, neck, stomach or bladder. Even the involuntary twitching of the eye lids, or facial muscles is associated with muscle spasm. The single or riddle of their cause has been solved. As it has been shown that the majority of all muscle spasms are caused by nerve root pressure, even though there can be other aggravating factors, injections, muscle relaxants and traction are measures which give temporary relief but contribute little to the correction of the basic cause of nerve pressure. A chiropractic examination will get at the truth of the matter and application of spinal adjustments, if necessary, will permit the correction of the majority of these conditions. Prompt attention in this matter usually brings prompt results.

Growing Child

READING FOR FUN: HOW PARENTS CAN HELP DEVELOP THE HABIT

The love that some children develop for reading doesn't happen by accident. It is usually something that is carefully planned by parents who want their child to experience the joy of reading.

Many parents start to develop this interest in their child by reading stories during the preschool years. But the parent's role does not end once the child starts school—or even when the child learns to read alone, reminds Growing Up, the child development newsletter for school-age children.

Reading is a joint responsibility of school and home. In school, the child learns vowel sounds, grammar, syntax, and drill exercises. What happens after that depends not only on the school, but on the parents.

If parents fail to show an interest, the child will begin to think of reading as just another chore. The drill and the exercises at school seem like torture. A good teacher's efforts to instill a love of reading at school may count for nothing if parents do not provide encouragement at home.

But if parents are willing to create a home environment that encourages the joy of reading, new horizons will be opened for the child's creative mind.

One part of a good reading environment at home is helping a child select an appropriate book. Most children need parental help with this.

Keep in mind when selecting a book:

- The child's interests.
- The child's reading ability level.
- What a child reads should add something meaningful and important to life. It may lead to either laughter or tears—but in either case it adds new depth and new meaning to life. If the book is too easy or too difficult, the child will soon lose interest.

Here are some more suggestions for increasing the joy of reading:

- Help your child get a library card of his own. Make the library a special place that the whole family visits often.

• Invite your child to talk about a book or a story, not in a questioning manner like school, but in a way that allows the child to talk about it in his own words. Ask, "What did you like most about that story?"

• Parents who enjoy a good book themselves and who share that enjoyment by talking about what they themselves are reading are helping their child develop the habit of reading for fun.

Growing Up follows a child's development through the school years. For more information, write to Growing Up, P.O. Box 620V, Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's school grade when writing.

Girl Scout News

At the April 2 meeting of the Bay-Waveland Girl Scout Neighborhood, the Volunteer of the Month Award was presented to Mrs. Bernard Tusa of Waveland.

Mrs. Tusa has served as cookie chairman for the neighborhood for the past three years and has been a helper and an assistant leader in her daughter's troops.

She worked as a counselor at the neighborhood day camp last year and will serve as waterfront director this year.

Mrs. Larry Burrows, neighborhood chairman, said, "It is an honor to present to Mrs. Tusa the first Volunteer of the Month Award as she is an excellent example of the volunteers working with our neighborhood."

In other business, Tusa reported that the girls in the neighborhood had sold 13,512 boxes of Girl Scout cookies to bring their troops $3,920 in profits to be used for troop projects.

Murrows reported that the Bay-Waveland Neighborhood ran three game booths and a snoball stand at the council Country Fair held March 8 at Camp Iti Kana in Wiggins.

Domino's Pizza, McDonald's Hamburgers, Pizza Hut, Popeye's Burger King and Pepsi-Cola donated prizes for the booths.

Mrs. John Holmes, day camp director, announced that this year's camp will be a five-day experience at Camp Iti Kana from June 9 through 13.

Camp is open to any girl in first through seventh grade. Brochures were given out. Further information is available from Holmes at 487-3710.

Narcotics News

Donald Butler
Director
Bureau of Narcotics

Q. What is "crack" or "rock" cocaine? (C. L. Pascagoula, MS)

A. Cocaine is usually in the form of a fine crystal-like powder, although it can be found in larger pieces known on the street as "rocks" or "crack."

The rocks resemble flakes of soap or whitish gravel having a waxy appearance.

This newly destructive form is being smoked, not snorted, and it's much more addictive, much more euphoric, and the high is much more intense.

It is believed by researchers to be the most addictive drug known to man at this time with addiction being almost instantaneous.

This wide spread addiction is affecting all economic levels - the affluent, as well as those in the ghetto.

It makes no difference whether the kids are white, black, or hispanic. The only difference is the rich kids can afford $100 rocks and the ghetto kids buy $10 to $15 rocks called "a quarter rock." "Quarter rocks" are smaller pieces that produce a 20 to 30 minute high.

"Crack" is creating social havoc on both coasts and in the larger cities. In these various cities, there are "crack/rock houses" set up for the sole purpose of selling "rock" cocaine.

A typical "rock" house is a rented apartment with a reinforced steel door. The dealer sits inside and deals through a slot in the door.

This prevents ripoffs by the customers and slows down police raids by giving dealers the extra time needed to flush drugs down the toilet.

"Crack" is like fast food, it's a quick-sale product.

Mississippi is usually behind times in fashion and trends. If you think the same about "crack," you are wrong.

Bureau agents raided a "rock house" in Lexington in February that led to the arrest of three persons.

The plain fact is that this is the fastest-growing drug problem in America for adults and school-age children.

"Rock" sells itself - no peer pressure needed.

Q. Where are marijuana fields located? (J. M. Laurel)

A. In the past, marijuana was smuggled into the United States; until violators found that it could be grown in most areas of the U.S.

Mississippi possesses all the qualities necessary to grow large quantities of profitable, high grade marijuana.

Marijuana fields are usually small and often hidden in clearings in wooded areas.

The plants may be hidden among crops (such as corn). They will normally be located near some type of water source like a pond, lake, river, or stream.

Marijuana has to be re-planted each year and by harvest time can easily have grown to 10 feet or more.

Q. How are people usually introduced to marijuana? And what age group has the highest percentage of abuse? (M. C. Brandon, MS)

A. Studies show that most people are introduced to marijuana by their peers. No pressure (not at home, school, etc.) seems harder to deal with than peer pressure.

Over 56 million Americans have tried marijuana at least once. Survey results published in a 1984 booklet by the National Institute on Drug Abuse shows the breakdown of marijuana use among teenagers as follows:

-8% of the 12 to 13 year-olds reported that they smoked marijuana at least once, and one quarter of this group were current users; and

-24% of the 14 to 15 year-olds had tried it, and one-third of them were still using it; and

-Among high school seniors it was found that 57% had tried it, and 5.5% were daily users.

Of those surveyed in the 12 to 17 age group, they reported to have tried and even started smoking marijuana regularly while in grade school.

Q. What is "crack" or "rock" cocaine? (C. L. Pascagoula, MS)

A. Cocaine is usually in the form of a fine crystal-like powder, although it can be found in larger pieces known on the street as "rocks" or "crack".

The rocks resemble flakes of soap or whitish gravel having a waxy appearance.

This newly destructive form is being smoked, not snorted, and it's much more addictive, much more euphoric, and the high is much more intense.

It is believed by researchers to be the most addictive drug known to man at this time with addiction being almost instantaneous.

This wide spread addiction is affecting all economic levels - the affluent, as well as those in the ghetto. It makes no difference whether the kids are white, black, or hispanic. The only difference is the rich kids can afford $100 rocks and the ghetto kids buy $10 to $15 rocks called "a quarter rock." "Quarter rocks" are smaller pieces that produce a 20 to 30 minute high.

"Crack" is creating social havoc on both coasts and in the larger cities. In these various cities, there are "crack/rock houses" set up for the sole purpose of selling "rock" cocaine.

A typical "rock" house is a rented apartment with a reinforced steel door. The dealer sits inside and deals through a slot in the door.

This prevents ripoffs by the customers and slows down police raids by giving dealers the extra time needed to flush drugs down the toilet.

"Crack" is like fast food, it's a quick-sale product.

Mississippi is usually behind times in fashion and trends. If you think the same about "crack," you are wrong.

Bureau agents raided a "rock house" in Lexington in February that led to the arrest of three persons.

The plain fact is that this is the fastest-growing drug problem in America for adults and school-age children.

"Rock" sells itself - no 'peer pressure' needed.

Q. Where are marijuana fields located?

(J. M. Laurel)
A. In the past, marijuana was smuggled into the United States; until violators found that it could be grown in most areas of the U.S.

Mississippi possesses all the qualities necessary to grow large quantities of profitable, high grade marijuana.

Marijuana fields are usually small and often hidden in clearings in wooded areas.

The plants may be hidden among crops (such as corn). They will normally be located near some type of water source like a pond, lake, river, or stream.

Marijuana has to be re-planted each year and by harvest time can easily have grown to 10 feet or more.

Q. How are people usually introduced to marijuana? And what age group has the highest percentage of abuse?

(M.C. Brandon, MS)
A. Studies show that most people are introduced to marijuana by their peers. No pressure (not at home, school, etc.) seems harder to deal with than peer pressure.

Over 56 million Americans have tried marijuana at least once. Survey results published in a 1984 booklet by the National Institute on Drug Abuse shows the breakdown of marijuana use among teenagers as follows:

—8% of the 12 to 13 year-olds reported that they smoked marijuana at least once, and one quarter of this group were current users; and

—24% of the 14 to 15 year-olds had tried it, and one-third of them were still using it; and

—Among high school seniors it was found that 57% had tried it, and 5.5% were daily users.

Of those surveyed in the 12 to 17 age group, they reported to have tried and even started smoking marijuana regularly while in grade school.
